Tilt Over Legal Depth of Canal Enlivens Hearing

Statement That Depth of Canal Was Eight Feet, Eight Inches Caused Clash Between John D. Schoonmaker and Commissioner Fuller at Barge Canal Hearing.

Development of the Hudson river from New York city to Albany as a huge inland port, in conjunction with the Port of Albany and with special emphasis on canal terminals at Hudson, Beacon and Newburgh was urged at a six-hour hearing Wednesday in the senate chamber before the special legislative barge canal survey commission.

Members of the committee expressed opposition to the idea of starting the state on a program of building more barge canal terminals, in view of the fact that the majority of the terminals already constructed are not being used.

It was explained to the representatives of Hudson, Newburgh and Beacon by John P. Magill, of the commission, that advocates of terminal proposals had failed to prepare accurate tonnage figures that would convince the commission of their necessity.

"I cannot see where the canal would benefit by a terminal at Newburgh from the generalities that have been offered here today," Mr. Magill said during the testimony by representatives of that city. "I'm not sold on that proposition now."

"That is the point," was the closing remark by Senator Leonard W. H. Gibbs of Buffalo, chairman. "We have built those terminals throughout the state and they aren't being used."

Clash Enlivens Hearing.

A tilt between Commissioner Fuller and John D. Schoonmaker enlivened the hearing. Mr. Fuller checked up on a statement made before the commission last week in New York city by Gerald A. Fagan, who said one of the Marine Transit Corporation's barges, loaded to a draft of eight feet, eight inches had struck bottom in the Rome level.

Roy G. Finch, state engineer and surveyor, asserted the depth of the canal in that level had been tested immediately and found to be of a uniform twelve foot depth.

"Can you think of anything more harmful to the canal than to make erroneous statements of that kind, given the wide publicity that statement was given?" Commissioner Fuller asked Mr. Schoonmaker.

Mr. Schoonmaker then suggested the canal engineers could have flooded the canal at that point to bring the channel to the legal twelve foot depth, a suggestion that was immediately denied by Mr. Finch. Mr. Schoonmaker then suggested that the heavy rains over the week end might have raised the canal level, whereupon Commissioner Fuller read reports from canal operators of instances where barges loaded to draft greater than ten feet had come through the canal without difficulty.

Mr. Schoonmaker made the statement and stuck by it, that barges cannot operate practically and economically through the canal at a draft less than nine and one-half feet.

He offered other canal criticisms and mentioned the difficulty of getting capital to invest in canal barges.

"It is not possible to get capital when we are advised periodically there is a movement on foot to scrap the canal," Mr. Schoonmaker said.

He said he obtained his information about scrapping the canal from a New York newspaper.

"What we need," Mr. Schoonmaker said, "is a canal with a twelve foot channel that will permit loading to an eleven foot draft. I believe anyone who will offer shippers good bottoms, good service at less than rail rates will bring increased tonnage to the canal."

Peter G. Ten Eyck of Albany brought out by questioning virtually all the witnesses that they favor the development of the Port of Albany. Mr. Schoonmaker, however, did not agree with the Deeper Hudson development.

"I'm in Albany now and I hate to say what I think," he said. "What's the use of a twenty-seven foot channel to Albany when you haven't any canal yet? Get your canal first and I'll be with you. I can't see any need for terminals anywhere until you first give us a canal."

Hudson Pleads for Terminal.

J. W. Grady, secretary of the Hudson Chamber of Commerce, was one of the two first witnesses to be called in the afternoon. Hudson, he said, is now engaged in a deep water port development in connection with the Deeper Hudson. Shippers are anxious, he asserted, to use a barge canal terminal at Hudson, but agreed with the commission that few shippers can find customers for canal shipments in cargo lots. In the case of the requested Hudson terminal, as in the case of the Beacon and Newburgh proposals, it was contended by the commission members that creation of regular package freight service would be necessary before such terminals would become successful. Hudson predicated its request for a canal terminal on the condition that such a package freight service be established first.

Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of Putnam county, urged a canal terminal plan for the Hudson valley. "I personally favor a ship canal connecting Albany with Lake Ontario and I hope to live to see the day when that comes true," Mr. Fish said. "But I also believe that if you furnish us with terminals in the Hudson valley we can furnish the trade. This section hasn't got anything out of the state in 100 years."

Newburgh's Proposals Outlined.

Newburgh was represented by Mayor Ray Spencer, Frederick Stern, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Assemblyman DeWitt Dominick; Chester C. Davis of Middletown, manager of the Orange county farm bureau; Robert Bacher, a fruit grower, and George Atkins of the Hudson Shipbuilding and Repair Company.

Mayor Spencer elaborated on Newburgh's plans for making the city a dep water port. Mr. Stern said Newburgh is trying to follow the example set by Albany.

Consider Cohoes Situation.

The barge canal survey commission will visit Cohoes today to conduct a hearing on the proposed abandonment of the old Champlain canal in that city.

Bridge Exercises At Poughkeepsie

Poughkeepsie will entertain on a grand scale on Friday, October 9, when the cornerstone of the Mid-Hudson bridge is laid at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by Governor Alfred E. Smith amid appropriate ceremonies.

Plans for the day's observance were discussed in detail and organization of the committees for the various items on the program was effected at a luncheon given in the Nelson House by Senator J. Griswold Webb. It was the concensus of opinion of all present that Poughkeepsie should put great emphasis on this important event and exert every effort to draw thousands her for the ceremonies that day.

In general the arrangements decided upon are:

The governor will lay the cornerstone at 4 o'clock. The ceremonies then will be brief, occupying not more than a half hour's time. There will be no speeches. Senator Webb will arrange the details of the exercise at the cornerstone.

In the evening the governor and Frederick Stuart Greene, state superintendent of public works, will speak in some auditorium. Former Mayor D. W. Wilbur, who will be chairman of the general committee in charge of the cornerstone celebration, will arrange for these exercises.

After the cornerstone laying in the afternoon, there will be a parade uptown in which a general invitation to participate will be issued to organizations and individual citizens. Colonel W. L. Burnett will arrange the parade details which will call for a review of the paraders by the governor at the Nelson House.

After the parade and before the evening exercises, there will be a dinner in honor of the Governor at which state officials, the members of the Legislature, officials of Dutchess, Ulster, Orange and other adjacent counties, mayors of Hudson Valley cities, presidents of villages, and other prominent figures will be invited guests. Poughkeepsians are invited to attend at their own expense. Frank L. Gardner is chairman of the committee on invitations and dinner.

Linked with the observance is to be an effort to induce former residents of Poughkeepsie and the surrounding territoryy to return especialy for this affair and to combne with it a sort of old home week-end. Not only will former residents but also people of Dutchess county and the entire mid-Hudson valley be invited to come to praticipate in the event. George G. Salberg is chairman of the committee on this effort and he will have the cooperation especially of the Chamber of Commerce whose assistance was pledged today by Alexander C. Dow, president.

There are many other details which are scheduled for further consideration at a second gathering to be held next Monday noon at the Nelson House. Mayor Lovelace has promised the fullest participation by the city and a considerable fund to assist in defraying expenses, while a balance left over from the fund raised for propaganda purposes in passing the bridge project in the Legislature will be available if the committee decides to use it for the cornerstone celebration.

GOVERNMENT WARNS OF NEW COUNTERFEIT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The Treasury Department in its circular letter No. 564 describes a new counterfeit $10 National Bank Note as follows:

On the Lackawanna National Bank, Lackawanna, N. Y., Series of 1902, check letter "D;" Chas. H. Treat, Treasurer of the United States; W. T. Vernon, Register of the Treasury; portrait of William McKinley.

This counterfeit is printed from crudely executed plates apparently wood-cut, on a single piece of paper without silk threads or imitation of them. All the work on the bill is so poorly done that it should be instantly detected and no more detailed description is considered necessary.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Brodhead, New York city, a son, Calvin Paul, at Kingston City Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Alva H. Roosa, 121 Green street, a son, Alva Henry, Jr., at Kingston City Hospital.

Borah Decries Barring Indian

Senator Borah Censures Revocation of Passport of Communist Member of Parliament—Effort Will Be Made in Congress Session to Amend Law.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 17.—A determined effort will be made in the approaching session of Congress to amend the law which gives the state department autocracy power to exclude foreign visitors on the ground they are "dangerous characters."

This became assured today following the department's revocation of a passport to Shapurji Saklatvala, Indian member of the British Parliament, a British delegate to the Inter-Parliamentary Union, invited by Congress to meet in Washington early in October.

Saklatvala by his own admission is a Communist, and Secretary of State Kellogg decided the inflammatory speeches that the Indian has made in Commons and in public in England make him undesirable even as a guest of the American Congress for the few weeks the union will be in session here.

Influential members of Congress, among them Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relation committee,, took decidedly opposite views today to those of the state department.

Pointing out that Saklatvala's speeches had been made in the British Parliament and in public, Borah declared the United States should be as liberal in the matter of free speech as the British Parliament. He decried the barring of the Indian as a short-sighted policy, comparable only to the "gagging" of Count Karolyi of Hungary, by the state department some months ago, which caused a nation wide stir.

"We have laws in this country to protect ourselves," said Borah. "If Saklatvala violates them he can be arrested. If he incites Americans to commit crimes put him in jail. But to deny him a visitors' admittance is ridiculous."

Kellogg's decision to bar Saklatvala was reached after considerable hesitation on the part of the state department, during which time it had been indicated that he would be admitted on a passport visa the same as other union delegates.

The department declined today to state what caused the apparent reversal of its earlier decision.

Salvage Crew Finds $500,000

Bullion on Craft Sunk by U-Boat Raised by Japanese From the Mediterranean—Uses Bird as Decoy to Lure Cats.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tokio, Sept. 17.—Gold Bullion valued at $500,000, which has lain at the bottom of the Mediterranean Sea, near Port Said, since the Japanese steamship Yasaka Maru was torpedoed by a German submarine in November, 1915, has been salvaged, according to word received here. The salvage crew, which was sent from Japan by the Japan Salvage Company, reports that the bullion is in good condition.

The Japanese Government has decided to participate in the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, from June 1 to December 30, 1926. An appropriation of 1,500,000 yens to defray expenses will be included in the government's budget for next year.

Merchants to Aid.

The Industrial Association of Japan will supervise the selection of exhibits and also will raise a fund from among Japanese business men to augment the sum appropriated by the government.

Minikichi Noguchi is under arrest in Tokio charged with killing 4,400 cats. Noguchi according to the police used small sparrows as a decoy and pounced upon the cats just as they were about to pounce upon the sparrows. Then he killed them and sold their internal furnishings to the Samisen makers, cat gut being one of the chief components of this three-stringed musical instrument so popular in Geisha circles. At about one dollar for each cat, Noguchi is said to have reaped a nice profit from this slaughter of felines.

Ulster Fruit At State Fair

In the fruit displays at the State Fair at Syracuse this week the display entered by the Clintondale Cooperative Fruit Exchange won second prize.

Individual winners in fruit competition included Melville Hurd of Clintondale and J. W. Weaver & Sons of Highland.

Dutchess county won third place in the competition among ten counties in both the general agricultural and imperial fruit exhibits. Lewis county won the blue ribbon in the exhibits of general agricultural products with Onondaga second.

Cops Eat Ulster Apples.

Fred Vail, the well known fruit grower of Milton, has made the Poughkeepsie police department happy with a gift of a bushel basket of choice apples. Each year he sends fruit to the police force.

McKenzie Won't Stand for Much More Nonsense

Action of Neighbors Was a Surprise But He Still Holds Several Jobs From Which He Can't Be Budged, Friends Say—Reflections on Ingratitude.

The far-famed "ingratitude of republics" was never exemplified to a greater degree, in the opinion of some local Democrats, than it was at Port Ewen on Thursday when Police Justice Henry E. McKenzie was dumped by his neighbors as a member of the Democratic county committee which he has ornamented for 40 years or more. To look at the Democratic county committee without seeing Judge McKenzie in their midst would be like looking at Hussey Hill without thinking of gold mines, or reading about George Washington, who the judge is said by some of his friends to resemble in some ways, without thinking of his little hatchet. The judge has seldom failed to contribute liberally of his time and money to the town and county organizations and aid candidates with valuable advice.

Judge McKenzie will not be without office, however, as he still has many months to serve as president of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association, an office which he accepted gracefully in June at Newburgh. He gained the office with the aid of Roscoe Irwin, who incidentally also has been deposed and who is himself a former president of the association, having had himself elected president several years ago when the convention was held in Kingston.

After his return from Newburgh Judge McKenzie was serenaded at his home but some people say that the serenaders included firemen from out of the county besides a number of Kingston firemen who wanted to see Port Ewen's water works system, and that the rest of the serenaders were Republicans who paid homage to the judge as a fellow townsman and not as a politician. Anyway, the result Tuesday seems to bear out this statement.

In the way of public office, Judge McKenzie holds the offices of justice of the peace and police justice of the town of Esopus and he will continue to hold these offices, or for that matter he can hold any other office if he wants it, according to his close friends and some of his neighbors. The rest of the neighbors remember what happened Tuesday. They don't express their thoughts, but Judge McKenzie doesn't care whether they do or not, because he has a strong private opinion about such people. And those of his neighbors who say that what has been done once can be done agains better keep their thoughts to themselves, if they are thinking of the result of Tuesday's primary, at least when Judge McKenzie is around.

And the judge is still secretary of the Democratic county committee, although some Democrats are saying that his term of office there may be uncertain because the new county committee that was elected on Tuesday must meet soon for organization and may decide to pick someone else. But such people will have to reckon with Judge McKenzie's smooth diplomacy. It takes a good man to follow the intricacies of diplomacy as Judge McKenzie practices it, but some people are mean enough to say that his neighbors were able to practice the same kind of diplomacy, and that is why his defeat came as such a surprise when the votes were counted Tuesday night.

Since the Ulster county Democrats have been holding county conventions during the past two years and playing the game of "Follow the leader if you can," the convention delegates have showered additional honors on Judge McKenzie by providing him with two assistants, one from each faction.

As a result of Tuesday's primary, it has been suggested that the new county committee might go still further in the way of honoring the judge by making him secretary emeritus, which would relieve him of the hard work and responsibility of handling the party secrets. Several names have been mentioned for the office of secretary de facto, the job he now holds. But this plan may be upset if the judge cares to exercise his well known diplomacy.

A change will all depend on whether he really decides to hold the job of secretary, because under the rules of the party the officers of the committee do not need to be elected as committeemen in their districts. In this way, it has been suggested, the committee is always sure of being able to get somebody in office who can write, but persons who talk that way explain that they mean someone who can write letters to Governor Smith or anybody else who can hand out jobs to deserving Democrats. Judge McKenzie is a good penman, if he should set out to do it, he could undoubtedly win first prize in any penmanship contest.

Even if the judge should be dumped as secretary of the county committee, he can continue to be justice of the peace and police justice of the town of Esopus for the rest of his term and longer if he wants it, some of his friends say, and anybody who has thoughts about prying his loose from that job better keep quiet or the judge may say what he really thinks about ungrateful Democrats and of the general ingratitude of republics.

Elks' Fashion Fete and Ball

B. P. O. E. Elks Will Conduct First Ball of Fall Social Season at Armory on October 23—Fashion Fete Expected To Make A Big Hit.

What promises to be an exceptionally pleasing and unique innovation in Charity Ball annals, and one which will open the fall social season in a gala manner, will be the "Fashion Fete and Ball for charity's sake," to be given by Kingston Lodge, B. P. O. Elks, in the Armory, Friday evening, October twenty-third.

The Fraternity of Elks,—Benevolent and Protective,—are united in philanthropic work, and have always done a great deal of charity, quietly and unobserved by the majority, but have always gone into their own treasury for funds, and now make their first appeal with a Charity Ball.

The Fashion Fete which will be a much admired feature, will display the latest styles in gowns, coats, wraps, furs and millinery selected from the houses of our Kingston merchants, while the models will be chosen from amongst Kingston's charming daughters, and this attraction added to the worthy cause bespeaks a wonderful and very successful ball.

The net proceeds will be used for the Hospital and the Elks' Christmas Fund. Complete arrangements, with committees, will be announced as soon as the Social and Community Welfare Committee of the Elks, who have the ball in charge, have their plans perfected.

51st Pioneers at Hudson Saturday

Local Delegation to Meet at Armory Here Saturday Morning—Election of Officers and Big Time Planned for Convention by Hudson Members.

The second annual reunion of the members of the 51st Pioneer Infantry will be held on Saturday, September 19 at Hudson. The meeting will be held in the armory, the morning session beginning about ten o'clock. There will be election of officers. David H. Walsh of Albany is president of the organization with th efollowing local men also holding office; Second vice-president, Thomas F. Coughlin; secretary, Eugene Cornwell, and Charles T. Dixon, treasurer.

Following the business session in the afternoon, a dinner will be served the members at Beacraft Inn, about three miles below Hudson on the state highway. In the evening a dance will be held in the armory with some special attractions.

Members of the old 10th N. Y. N. G. are eligible to attend as well as those who served at any time with the 51st Pioneers.

A large delegation from this city are planning to attend. At a meeting held in the armory Tuesday evening, the transportation problem was discussed. Those who are going are requested to meet at the armory on Saturday morning at 7:45. Those going with their own car will report at the armory at that time to convey the members to Hudson.

It is expected that the number attending the reunion this year will exceed that of last year by a large majority. It is said that there will be a large delegation from the Albany district as well as New York and vicinity. It is understood that the Veteran of Foreign Wars organization will donate refreshments which can be had during the business session. Those going are assured of a good time and one that will long be remembered.

Death Penalty For Two Bandits

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 17.—Joseph Holmes and James Wilson, alias Jack Woods, two of the five bandits, who two months ago participated in a holdup of the fashionable Drake Hotel here, must hang for the killing of Frank B. Rodkey cashier of the hotel.

A jury in criminal court so decided shortly after 2 o'clock this morning after nine and one half hours deliberation during most of which the jury was deadlocked by two jurors who held out for life imprisonment.

The holdup of the Drake, in the heart of the gold coast district took place on July 23. Rodkey was shot to death by Holmes when he stalled at the bandit's boasts that he was a bad man and a killer.

One of the bandits, Texas Court, was shot to death by police as he was fleeing from the hotel and another Erik Nelson, was slain after a six mile chase through parks and boulevards. The only one to get away was William McIlenchurd alleged leader of the band, who carried most of the $4,000 loot.

The defense of Holmes and Wilson was that both were feeble minded and under the influence of moonshine, neither denying the holdup.

Sentencing of the pair to the gallows seven weeks after the crime and after a trial of only ten days was regarded as a record in Cook county.

British Pleased With U. S. Action

In Barring Communist Member of Parliament From Entering This Country—Ban Follows His Declaration of Being a Disciple of Revolucion in His Visit Here.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 17.—While members of the British delegation to the inter-parliamentary unian meeting to be held in Washington were openly gleeful over the action taken by Secretary of State Kellogg in barring Shapurji Saklatvala, Communist M. P., from entering the United States, the British government was giving silent approval to the action. Meanwhile radical circles in Great Britain were making the United States Government the objective attacks.

"The United States decision to ban Saklatvala gives me great pleasure and relives me of great embarrassment,,, said Robert Horne, M. P., former chancellor of the exchequer and a member of the British delegation to the inter-parliamentary union. "I am glad that the United States has taken this action of its own initiative and hope this will be a lesson to the constituency who elected Saklatvala and make them ashamed of having sent a man to parliament who cannot be received by a friendly government."

Sir Robert Bird, who had announced that he would cancel his plans to attend the inter-parliamentary union because of Saklatvala's intention of attending, now announced that in view of the action taken by the United States he will go to Washington.

J. Ramsay MacDonald, former Labor premier, and Arthur Henderson, former Labor home secretary, refused to comment upon the action taken by the United States.

In some circles it was believed that although no official action had been taken that possibly the British government had dropped an informal hint to the United States that the barring of Saklatvala would relieve Great Britain from an embarrassing position.

Evidences of favorable administration opinion were not lacking. It was recalled that Home Secretary Johnson Hicks recently said, regarding the proposed American visit of the fiery radical:

"If I had the power I would soon stop Saklatvala going to America. But I haven't, because he is a British citizen."

Meanwhile, doubt of the authenticity of the Washington dispatches was the attitude taken by the Communist member of parliament whose declaration that he would be a disciple of world revolution in his American visit brought Secretary Kellogg's ban against him.

Even while a messenger from the American consulate general was en route to Saklatvala's home with the notification that his visa was revoked, Saklatvala, from his high gate flat, declared he was not ready to believe the report.

"After the Zinoviev incident and other recent practices of the British government, I intend to ignore this entirely until I receive something definite," he declared. He referred to the supposed letter from Foreign Minister Zinoviev of the Soviet Republic to Former Premier Ramsay Mac Donald, which Soviet authorities denounced as a forgery.

Saklatvala has carried out his Communist teachings to the extent of giving up his important position under a capitalistic management as head of the cotton mills department of Messrs. Tata, Limited, because, as he said:

"One's political obligations require at times a somewhat uncompromising stand irrespective of one's personal interests."

Messrs. Tata, Limited, are agents of the Tata Power Company of Fort Bombay, a $20,000,000 corporation. The younger brother of Saklatvala is one of the directors of the corporation.

In a letter to his firm, Saklatvala pointed out that his continued connection with it might do "unjustifiable harm to the firm's standing in commercial banking circles."

He said his departure would cause no inconvenience as preparations already had been made to his place during his absence in America.

The foreign office comment on Secretary Kellogg's action was piquant.

"The United States had a perfect right to ban Saklatvala and the British government will not protest," said the official spokesman of the foreign office, without a smile.

There is much speculation now as to whether Home Secretary Sir William Johnson Hicks will order the arrest of Saklatvala and other Communists on charges of preaching sedition. It is known that Sir William has long planned such drastic action but has withheld it hoping for action by the United States which might make it easier for the British government to act.

More Money For Farmers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington D. C., Sept. 17.—It is expected that the plans formulated by the delegates from fifty-six Joint Stock Land banks will result in the increasing by several hundreds of millions of dollars the amount of money available for farm requirements, and it is more than probable that the interest rates will be lowered to a point somewhere between a quarter and one cent under the levels prevailing at the present time.

Trolley Road's Petition Held Up for a Week

Public Service Commission Suggested That Common Council, Chamber of Commerce and Trolley Road Get Together Between Now and Then and Settle Bus Question.

The motion made by the Kingston Consolidated Railroad to relieve it of the condition of providing sufficient bus service in the place of the Colonial Division which it proposes to abandon came up for a hearing Tuesday before the public service commission at Albany and the matter was held open until next Tuesday with a suggestion from the commission that the common council, Chamber of Commerce and trolley road officials get together between now and then and act on the application of the trolley road to operate a bus service.

Corporation Counsel James Jenkins represented the city at the hearing Tuesday while Judge Irvine, a former public service commissioner, appeared for the trolley road. The Chamber of Commerce was represented by Secretary Louis S. Coe.

Judge Irvine stated that the common council had delayed granting the application to operate a bus service and the trolley road did not know whether the application would be granted or not and therefore was at a disadvantage in complying with the order of the public service commission requiring that the trolley road in case it abandoned the Colonial Division should use the Colonial Subway for all trolley service and also substitute bus service on the route to be abandoned.

Judge Jenkins stated the reason for the delay was due to the fact that at the public hearing held by the railroad committee of the common council the Kingston Taxpayers' Association and Chamber of Commerce had made suggestions. The Chamber of Commerce had asked that the matter be delayed if possible so that the organization could study the proposition offered by the trolley road and also to ascertain how bus service had operated in other cities where trolley systems had been abandoned. That was the reason for the delay in acting on the trolley road's application for a bus franchise.

Judge Jenkins also introduced in evidence the consent granted in 1892 to the Kingston Electric Railway Company, a predecessor of the present trolley company, in which it was made a condition that the trolley road place the pavement between the tracks in the same condition as the rest of the street in case service was abandoned. The corporaion counsel also moved to amend the order of abandonment to provide that the trolley company repave between the tracks and two feet outside.

The public service commission stated that if the consent under which the trolley road was operating was as stated, that a recovery of the costs of paving could be had in the courts, and that it did not believe it had jurisdiction in the matter.

It is expected that the common council will hold a special meeting before next Tuesday to take action on the trolley road's application for a bus service.

Ford Planning Barge Canal Fleet

Two Hundred Barges to be Constructed, Principally for Use of Ford Motor Company Between Detroit and Hudson River.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 17.—The Ford Motor Company is planning to build a fleet of freight boats for use on the barge canal.

This was revealed today by Leon F. Tholl, superintendent of the Ford plant at Green Island, in testifying before the special commission created by the legislature to make a survey of the canal. At present, Tholl said, his company is shipping 200 tons of freight daily by rail from the vicinity of Detroit to the Green Island plant.

"We believe this freight could be shipped cheaper by the barge canal and for that reason the company is planning the construction of a fleet of barges," Tholl said.

Representatives of several Troy concerns told the committee they were planning to use the canal extensively next year.

A Business Girl's Vacation

By ALICE CAMPBELL

WE OUTSHONE THE PRINCE FOR ATTENTION.

Our party left Clayton at noon with Montreal as our next destination. We passed through many small towns and through the city of Ogdensburg and on to Massena where we lodged for the night, at one of the best tourist inns in the state (so we think). The lady told us it was a treat to have us there for the night and the neighbors for a block around came for a look at our car and at the five bold occupants who were on their way to see the world. For the recreational part of our program we attended a dance outside of Massena that evening.

In Montreal, where we arrived the following day, we can safely say that the Prince of Wales didn't attract much more attention than our picturesque Ford with its five weary and dust-coated occupants. Our stay in Montreal was sensational, to say the least, because everywhere we went we had an eager crowd of onlookers, pushing and shoving each other for a look at the car and its decorations. Perhaps they were shocked at our brazenness to appear on the streets in knickers, for we learned later that the city is most conventional in its ideas of appropriate dress.

In most parts of the city we were applauded and cheered by the Canadians and they called us the plucky "American girls."

Places of interest we visited in Montreal were McGill University, and Mount Royal. We made the trip to Mount Royal in a cab, a most popular vehicle in Montreal.

The beauty of Mount Royal is hard to describe and the view of the city from there is quite breathtaking and inspiring. The beautiful and quaint buildings, the funny little streets, the Victoria bridge, the St. Lawrence river in the far distance all combined to make a picture that is never to be forgotten.

On our way to Quebec, our next stop, we stayed overnight in a little French Canadian village called Louiseville and here we learned something of the peculiar customs of the French Canadian people. Only two people in the village could speak English one of whom was a girl about our own age who had learned the English language while visiting in the "states." She worked in an ice cream store owned by her uncle, who was a fine type of Canadian to our way of thinking, jovial, fat and funny. The girl asked us if we would like to dance and having nothing else to do we accepted the invitation and in only a few minutes to our amazement we had a large audience in front of the window. The little French girl enlightened us about this explaining that the Canadian boys or girls were not allowed to dance except at weddings and they were watching us for new steps. If they dance at all it is against the wishes of their priest, she said. No matter how small a village we passed through it was always certain to have a beautiful church, and many priests. Our constant wonder was how a little village of its size supported such impressive churches.

Before we proceed any further with the journey we musn't forget to say that at the close of each day we kept an account of the day's expenditures in a little book we brought expressly for the purpose. Not even a five cent ice cream cone or a postage stamp was omitted from the list because it was only in this way that we could keep track of our financial balance. At the end of this story we will list our financial account showing to "the world" that five girls who are especially fond of movies, sundaes, etc., can be as economical as any saving person.

What tender and glorious memories we have of Quebec! Even more conventional than Montreal we liked it beyond words, and so will you.

We were able to amble around the streets and admire everything to our hearts desire, while in Montreal we were more or less rushed, in the one day we were there. We had heard from many friends of the Chateau Frontenac. They had praised it to us so we had visions of something similar to the Hotel Statler or the Vanderbilt in New York. Upon arrival in Quebec we had decided to inquire the rates at the Chateau and stay there for one night. As the clock was tolling the hour of four in the afternoon and our car had bravely ascended the last of many Quebec hills, we had our first glimpse of the Chateau.

Truthfully, the sight of it exceeded every expectation we might have had in regard to its splendor. It is an old castle of about 3,000 rooms located majestically on one of Quebec's highest hills overlooking the city below. At night when lighted it is a beacon for the whole city and the social activity of Quebec is centered around the Chateau Frontenac. At night the lobby is filled with beautifully dressed women and perfectly groomed men, a large number being Americans. Here we brushed elbows with people from all over the country. Tourists, celebrities, debutantes, society matrons and their daughters, Canadians, all alike were assembled.

We visit a Famous Shrine and are deeply impressed with what we see.

The Faithful Printer

Years ago, when the New York Herald and James Gordon Bennett, Jr., were in their prime, the latter issued one of his arbitrary orders that thereafter the name Herald should never appear unless in italics. One printer followed it almost too literally. Christmas week came round and churches announced in their programs, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," the printer duly italicizing.—Kansas City Star.

Easy One for Mother

Listening to the conversation of grown-ups, as children often do, Duncan, five years old, learned there were such things as stepmothers. He rolled the idea around in an active and eager brain for nearly an hour, without getting anywhere; then sought information from the encyclopedia oftenest consulted by little boys. "Mother," he asked, "how does a stepmother step?"—Capper's Weekly.

Teachers' Institute At High School

Educators of County and City Hear Interesting Addresses by Principal Van den Berg of New Paltz Normal School, A. F. Sheldon and Mrs. Leigh Colvin.

The Ulster County Teachers' Institute opened at Kingston High School this morning with a very large attendance from the county schools, with the following district superintendents also present:

Emily S. Burnett, first district.
John U. Gillette, second district.
J. Hartley Tanner, third district.
Wallace J. Andrews, fourth district.

Following the opening exercises Principal Van Ingen of the High school extended the cordial greetings of the Kingston board of education and the faculty of the high school to the visiting teachers, superintendents and speakers and hoped that all who might attend the institute might be the richer therefore.

The first speaker of the morning was Principal Van den Berg of New Paltz Normal who spoke on "Educational Progress." Before really getting into his subject Principal Van den Berg expressed his appreciation of Mr. Van Ingen's welcome and congratulated the teachers upon having the privilege of meeting in Kingston's beautiful high school without having to pay any fee, and a fee being charged in some counties, unfortunately.

Mr. Van den Berg told interestingly of the extension work being done at the New Paltz Normal School. One feature of that work is the holding of Saturday morning "schools," for groups of teachers wishing to complete their educational course of study. Such schools have been successfully held in Rhinebeck, Poughkeepsie and Amenia in Dutchess county, and also in Saratoga and Greene counties. The course covers 15 weeks of nearly three successive hours of intensive work each Saturday morning.

Mr. van den Berg expressed the hope that such a group of Ulster county teachers might be formed. A nominal charge of $10 is made for the course and an enrollment of at least 20 students are required in order to even the small fee and expenses for those teaching the classes. Seniors of the New Paltz Normal School are sent to neighboring cities to gain in those schools actual experience as well as to observe. This has greatly increased the "selling" value of these teachers after graduation, and they are almost immediately located.

Another form of "progress" was the cutting out of the syllabus of much useless work, so that no work not within the comprehension of the child will be attempted. The teaching of a drama course and of current events also was a progressing move of real value.

Principal van den Berg was strongly in favor of the centralized school and cited the large number of one room schools that have already been eliminated, especially in the middle western and southwestern states.

Then Mr. Gillette introduced Secretary Coe of the Chamber of Commerce who in turn introduced A. F. Sheldon, who has been giving in Kingston his course in "Study of Natural Law, Human Engineering," and who spoke to the teachers on the subject of "The Philosophy of Education."

Mr Sheldon paid a high tribute to the teachers as being of a body which had a vocation which in all the world was unequalled, because as teachers they were guiding the boys and girls of the land at a time when civilization is trembling in the balance and we seem to be facing spiritual darkness. The teacher may help the youth of the land to choose between the true and false philosophy of life.

Mr Sheldon had put the question "What is Education?" to thousands of school children of all ages and to their instructors without getting one right answer. His answer was that education is the key to power and such training as gives that key to power alone is education. But he preferred to define education as educt-ion, "drawing-out or unfolding;" and educating as the cause and education the effect. The reason that 95 per cent of young people turn out to be failures, Mr. Sheldon gave as due to the transgressions of natural law, and elaborated that point.

The speaker then offered four suggestions for the bettering of the educational system:

First—The practicalization of education for the masses.

Second—The development of every child's natural equipment of head, heart (spirit), body and will.

Third—Emphasizing the fact that the only real rule for making gold is the golden rule.

Fourth—A closer cooperation between parents and teachers and between taxpayers and teachers.

In closing his address, Mr. Sheldon said we hear much of "The hand that rocks the cradle ruling the world," but that after all it is the teacher who moulds the mind of the person that rocks the cradle, therefore the significant potentiality of the teaching profession.

Mr. Sheldon then invited the teachers present to the special course of instruction to be given in six lectures at the high school next Tuesday evening for the teachers of the city schools by the Chamber of Commerce. This body had just extended the invitation to the county teachers and many availed themselves of the free offer and "signed up" for the course.

The last speaker of the morning was Mrs. Leigh Colvin, state vice-president of the W. C. T. U., who spoke on "American Safeguard."

UNFAIR TO FOREIGN-BORN

It has been asserted that 60 per cent of our crimes of violence are committed by the foreign-born or the sons of the foreign-born. In response it has been pointed out that for 1923 Memphis had a murder rate per 100,000 of 65.0 to a foreign-born percentage of 3.5, Jacksonville a murder rate of 61.7 to a foreign-born percentage of 3.0, Nashville a murder rate of 38.7 to a foreign-born percentage of 2.0, and New Orleans a murder rate of 29.9 to a foreign-born percentage of 7.0. Obviously it can be reasonably argued that both the high murder rate and the low foreign-born percentage of these Southern cities are largely due to their heavy negro populations. And confirmation can be found in the fact that 150 of Chicago's 350 murders last year, in spite of its great foreign population, occurred in its "black belt" largely inhabited by negroes from the South.

Many cities with a large foreign-born population show a relatively low murder rate. New York city, with 26 per cent of foreign-born, had in 1923 a murder rate of 5.2 per 100,000. Boston, with 32 per cent of foreign-born, had a rate of 4.2. Paterson, N. J., with 32 per cent of foreign-born, had a rate of 3.6. Lowell, Mass., with 34 per cent of foreign-born, had a rate of 1.7. Numerous other cities show similar foreign-born percentages and murder rates. It appears to be perfectly safe to conclude that the charge quoted above is far from having substantial basis in fact.

The increase of $22,000,000 in the expenses of the state of California for 1923-25, over the two preceding years is typical of what is going on in practically every state, city and county in the United States. These various political subdivisions are increasing local taxes faster than the government can cut federal expenditures. While a large part of the California tax increase has been due to a gasoline tax, still the tendency is for local taxes to pile up, while federal taxes are being reduced. The average voter must be brought to realise that he has only himself to blame for a large part of his tax burdens. If he votes for every fool scheme that somebody proposes without using any judgment or discretion in the matter, he should be taxed "until it hurts," thus bringing him to his senses.

The Communists having gone so far as to stage a public insult to Princess Mary and her husband in a public park, there is announcement of England's determination to drive the Reds out of the country. A really clean sweep may be difficult, perhaps even impossible, but it would put an end to one continuing source of serious disturbance.

One of the best ways to relieve traffic congestion in cities and at the same time save money, is to ride on the street cars. One street car will carry approximately 40 persons, where an automobile carries an average of two; therefore, 20 automobiles carry only as many passengers as one street car will conveniently transport.

Punch ventures the long-distance suggestion that "the falling-off in the number of marriages in America is due perhaps to the fears of young men as to whether they can afford to divorce their wives in the manner to which they are accustomed."

Mussolini's announcement that Julius Caesar is his "ideal" and [illegible] suggests that the Italian dictator may be indulging dreams of a literal crown in addition to a monarch's power.

According to a Seminole Indian of Florida, the proper pronunciation is neither Mi-am-y nor Mi-am-ma but My-am-e—and he ought to know.

The fool and his money are readily parted but only legal authority can pry him away from the steering wheel.

The enthusiasm of waiters throughout the world over a Danish court's decision upholding a waiter's right to a tip will be dampened by the further news that the court fixed the proper size of the tip as not over ten per cent of the cost of the meal.

CHANGING YOUR POSTURE.

During the war some of our mining men, prospectors, and woodsmen were able to teach the war department some things about carrying loads. By the use of a yoke across the forehead and embracing the shoulders, they were able to carry from fifty to one hundred per cent more weight than by some of the other or older methods. When the weight was removed for a time, a little bending of the neck was in order. This matter of "tiredness or fatigue" of which I speak from time to time now occupies an important place in the thoughts of the efficiency experts. These men have discovered that more accidents occur near the close of the day than at any other time, due to tiredness of brain and body. They have found too that on Saturday morning there are more accidents than usual due to the tiredness from the week's work and also to the fact that the worker may be thinking of the close of the week, the rest or holiday ahead of him, and so forth. One of these experts has discovered an interesting thing. He found that in the lifting of weights steadily for a certain period, that even although he gave the worker some rests, less work was actually done than when he went along for the same period without a rest. That is so long as the worker was motionless during the rests. But if he changed his posture by bending his shoulders or moving his arms, and by so dong influenced his circulation, the total work done was decidedly greater. In fact his ability to work was made more effective by his change of posture or position of his body, than by actually taking longer rest periods.

This is exactly in line with what some workers have discovered for themselves. The man standing at the bench finds that walking around one rest period helps him, and then sitting down the next rest period likewise helps him. And the one sitting at the desk or machine stands up, stretches his back and arms, and likewise helps his entire circulation, particularly in the tired or fatigued parts of the body. A dog or other animal will stretch himself after lying down for some time. When he has been runninig or has been on his feet for a time when he lies down he seems to relax every muscle in his body. Animals naturally assume postures that relieve strain and fatigue.

These findings of the efficiency experts are worth taking unto ourselves as we go about our daily tasks. We will do more work, feel less tired, and feel better physically.

ANIMAL DISEASE COST MILLIONS EVERY YEAR

"Diseases cause the greatest losses in animal husbandry," said Dr. V. A. Moore in a talk at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. "For that reason their control is of much importance."

Dr. Moore divides the diseases that affect domesticated animals into three groups, epizootic, infectious and sporadic. "The epizootic diseases, such as pleuro-pneumonia and foot and mouth disease, are better known to the public than are the others at the present time, but the losses from them are smaller than those from other diseases. The epizootic diseases are usually acute, highly infectious, and spread very rapidly.

"The infectious diseases which often take an epizootic form are hog cholera, anthrax, Texas fever, rabies, and several poultry diseases. The present knowledge of the nature of these maladies enables live stock sanitary officials and veterinarians to keep them under control. Infectious abortion in cattle and tuberculosis are very destructive and their prevention would save millions annually.

"The sporadic diseases cause the heaviest losses to live stock owners. They are caused by improper care, improper food, mechanical injuries, poisons, general infections and parasitisms. Care and prompt attention by competent veterinarians will minimize them. In the prevention of sporadic and infectious diseases the owner has much responsibility."

STOLEN CAR FOUND NEAR CEMETERY.

The Ford car of Merton Mills of Quarryville, which was stolen while the owner was attending the circus performance at Saugerties last Friday night, was found by Police Captain A. W. Richter, jammed against a tree on upper Main street, opposite Mountain View Cemetery, in Saugerties. Whoever took the Ford evidently had a joy ride, and traveled as long as the "gas" lasted, the tank being empty when found. The only damage done was a broken crank handle. The car was returned to Mills.

One Thought At a Time

By Arthur Frederick Sheldon.

TOO MUCH SUPERVISION.

A large printing establishment in a town located outside of London, England, maintained a large staff of solicitors in London. The manager in charge had formed the habit of checking the order of each salesman each night.

To do this for thirty salesmen was a big job. Doing it, frequently made him late for dinner, and resulted in the displeasure of many members of the sales staff whose departure for home after the day's work was done was thus considerably delayed.

The manager awakened to the fact that he was giving supervision that wasn't needed. He called the sales staff together, placed the responsibility upon each one of checking his own orders before they were mailed to headquarters.

He stated later that he waited with fear and trembling for the returns from headquarters until the first few batches of daily orders had been sent in. He found, however, to his delightful surprise that there had been a reduction of errors instead of the increase he had expected.

In all, many managers are guilty of giving more supervision than the work of the subordinate needs. This is expensive in more ways than one. It consumes the manager's valuable time, it retards development of the subordinate non-use of his own powers, it lessons morale. It accomplishes many things destructive of maximum constructive results.

It should be constantly borne in mind that there is one thing more expensive than need of supervision and that is the giving of supervision that is not needed.

The biggest job of the manager of men is that of teacher. A teacher of fundamental things as well as the technique of the job. One of the prime necessities for good teaching is respect of the teacher for the intelligence of the one taught. The way for the teacher to get respect is to first of all give respect. The way for the employer or the manager to generate the feeling of responsibility is to delegate responsibility.

Faith of the employer in the one employed, faith of the one employed in the employer and the manager; that is one of the first big steps to the goal of betterment of human relationships.

Faith is literally the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Faith is confidence, it is trust, and this is the foundation of all successful human relationships.

LOCUSTA.

Locusta was a notorious woman of Ancient Rome in the time of Nero, the emperor.

She poisoned Claudius and Britannicus, and later attempted to destroy the madman, Nero, himself. She failed in this, unfortunately, and paid the penalty for her failure with her life.

TUNNELS.

The first tunnel through the Alps, the Mount Cenis, or Col De Fejus tunnel, was formally opened 54 years ago today, when a train of 22 carriages passed through in 22 minutes.

The tunnel is eight miles in length and cost $13,000,000.

The work was actually commenced in 1857. The Italians were in charge of it, but the French government bore the chief expense.

The next Alpine tunnel, the St. Gothard, was opened in 1881 and in 1884 the Alberg tunnel was inaugurated. The Wasserfluh tunnel was completed in 1909, and the Simplon in 1905, being 12 and a half miles long—the longest Alpine tunnel.

The highest railway tunnel in the world and the most difficult of construction, is that through the Andes, connecting Argentina and Chile. It is 12,000 feet above sea level and was opened in 1910.

MARCO POLO.

The first European to enter China and to give the Western world a glimpse of the people and customs of Cathay was Marco Polo, a Venetian, who was born in Venice 673 years ago today, September 17, 1252. His father, Cicolo Polo, a man of rank, was the first Caucasian to visit the borders of China, but his son was destined to even greater success as a traveller. At the age of 21 Marco had reached the court of the Khan of Shangtu, where he mastered the language, and was, according to Chinese annals, made an agent for the Imperial Council. Marco made a note of all the things he saw, and obtained the confidence of the Khan to such an extent that he was made governor of the important city of Yangchoo. Returning to Europe, after so much peril safely passed, Marco was made a prisoner by the Genoese, and being placed in a cell with a man of literary attainments, the latter wrote down the stories Marco related of his travels. Long considered by the Europeans to be fabulous, the tales of the first great Asiatic traveller are now known to be true.

Brick Combines Rare Qualities

Brick Houses Suggest Permanency, Hospitality, Warmth and Comfort—Moderate as Well as Millionaire's Palace Share in Beauty.

Charles Thompson Mathews, author of "The Story of Architects," says that "roughly defined, architecture is the art of ornamental construction, not ornamental in the sense of decorated, but in the harmonious distribution of mass, in the convincing beauty of proportion." The same standard applies to the modest home as to the vast public library or court house, "convincing beauty" is not a matter of money. Perfect taste and perfect material can be put into a moderate cost home as well as into the millionaire's palace. Is there anyone who has not been fortunate enough to see, at some time of his life, a little brick house that appealed to him as being all that it should be—an ideal companion for the trees and the grass and the hills around—a little house that cost no more than the gate lodge of some expensive and glaring "villa."

Europe has been a land of brick houses for hundreds of years and America is rapidly emerging from the "wooden age." Many a traveler has returned from abroad with tales of the picturesque homes of England, quite unaware that the underlying cause of their charm lies in the material—solid, dignified brick—the appeal of which has only been enhanced by years of sunshine and storm.

Brick is the material that succeeds, as none other can, in adapting itself to the wants of the men with good taste and a moderate income. In the house built on a proper plan, it suggests all the qualtities that should be associated with the word, "home", permanency, hospitality, warmth, comfort, beauty. And brick has that rare and wonderful characteristic which is said to distinguish the elect among womankind—it grows old beautifully.

In a building it is not possible to have real beauty without strength. The eye cannot be thoroughly satisfied if in the mind lurks the consciousness that the architect's creation is to be vanquished in the battle with time. Time is powerless to mar the beauty or to sap the strength of brick. Generations may come and go, but the sturdy brick walls of the homestead stay on. Brick may reach a venerable old age—it never reaches the state of decrepitude. Brick comes from the bosom of Mother Earth, in a form of plastic clay; it is hardened by the most powerful agency known in the world—fire; it defies wind and rain; it is as enduring as earth itself.

To be a success, any work of art must have individuality and character. The painter produces his effects by combining color. Each primary color is a unit, and the mixture and application of these colors make possible a limitless number of combinations. So it is with brick. The number of variety of units give full play to the talents of the architects. He uses them as an artist uses his paints. He can produce a house with character.

Since the day when the Assyrians were in their glory inventive genius of man has wrought great improvements in brick. Nowadays it is turned out of the kiln in nearly ever color and shade in every degree of coarseness and fineness. It dams a river, it paves a street, it forms the wall of a factory, it adorns the inside as well as the outside of a home.

There was once a time when the mortar joints were regarded as an unwelcome necessity, but that time is past. Modern art has shown that mortar can be made a valuable ally in attaining the ultimate object—beauty. With their units of many colors, the architect and the clever brick worker create a surface which has the look of a skillfully woven fabric, thus the bonding together of brick permits varied effects in what the architects call "texture." Brick has such a quality of humanity as clings to no other substance that goes into the making of a house.

There is always the knowledge that there is the work of human hands—that every piece was made by man and put into place by man. The effects, produced by man's harmonious arrangement of his many units, is one of lasting vitality.

It may be taken for granted that many a home builder has passed brick by because of mistaken ideas about its cost. In these days there is no reason for any man, who is planning to build to yearn in vain for a home of brick; he may have it if he wants it. And he will want nothing else. If he studies the course of present day thought "in architecture; if he learns what the leading architects and builders of the world consider the most beautiful, the most permanent, and the most economical of all materials.

Jordan Did Not Steal Automobile

Rosendale Man Drives Without a License and Is Fined $5—John Albany Fined $15—James Winters Discharged.

Joseph Jordan, a young man who resides in Rosendale, was fined $5 by Judge Harry E. Schirick in police court this morning on a charge of operating an automobile withuot a license. Back of that fact lies an interesting tale of a "stolen" automobile that was quickly recovered by the police department.

Monday evening William Jones and his wife of No. 112 Gage street parked their Hupmobile on Main street near the First Dutch Church while they attended the Kingston Opera House. When the show was over they found their car missing and reported the theft to the police.

Later Officers Welch and Dempsey found the car parked on the Strand in possession of Joseph Jordan and they placed him under arrest. Jordan told the police that he had not stolen the car but had driven it into Kingston from Eddyville for Charles Rudolph. While the police were questioning Jordan the other young man removed his bicycle from the rear of the auto and rode away on it.

In police court Jordan repeated his story to Judge Schirick when the hearing was adjourned until today and a summons issued for Rudolph to appear today at which time he stated that he had taken the car from Main street. It also developed that Rudolph is a brother-in-law of Mr. Jones and Mr. Jones informed the court that he did not wish to press any charge against his brother-in-law.

Albany Fined $15.

John Albany of East Strand, who drove away from the scene of an accident with the car of James Winters of this city without reporting it, was fined $15 by Judge Schirick. Winters had been arrested at the same time for driving a car without his operator's license but he produced it in court and was discharged. He informed Judge Schirick that he had the license at the time he was arrested but had left it home in another coat and did not have it in his posession at the time of the arrest.

Centenary of Match

The match recently had its one hundredth birthday, having been introduced in 1825 by John Walker, an Englishman, who conceived the idea of selling his matches in boxes at 1 shilling 4 pence a box.

The safety match, called "Swedish," did not appear until the year 1892. This was the first match which could be lit only when struck on the box.

The idea of the match, however, antedated Walker by nearly two centuries. As early as 1680 Godfrey Hawkwitz was using phosphorus to ignite little wooden sticks, dipped in sulphur. Various experiments were made by other scientists of the day, but it was not until 1825 that the match emerged from the laboratory and was placed on the market.

Long-Buried Tree

Rolla Fallon, employed at the Glenn Ayr mine, near Terre Haute, Ind., was digging coal with a pick 300 feet below the surface and more than a quarter of a mile back in the mine, late in March, when he struck a substance that was firmly embedded in the coal. He picked at it until a piece, more than one foot long fell out, disclosing a well-developed tree trunk with limb formations still intact. The whole tree appears to be in the coal. He took the wood to Terre Haute and will send it to the state museum at Indianapolis for further scientific research. The wood oozes water and is spongy instead of petrified, as would be supposed. The find is attracting considerable attention from miners.

Magnet Collects Tacks

A mining company in Idaho recently performed a unique experiment in ridding a highway of tacks, nails and other metallic objects which cause tire punctures. An 1,500-pound magnet operated by 73 storage batteries was attached to a truck and dragged over the road. About 300 pounds of nails, tacks, bottle caps and other metal was collected on a mile and a half of road.

THE BAD DEED

"It makes me sad, oh, so sad," said the Sea Lion in the big tank at the zoo.

"What makes you so sad?" asked another Sea Lion in another tank.

"I killed my mate last summer."

"You did!" exclaimed the other Sea Lion. "What a terrible creature you are! No wonder they have us in different tanks."

"Oh, don't be cruel to me," said the first Sea Lion.

"You deserve it," said the second Sea Lion.

"Oh, do not say so, until you have heard my story," said the first Sea Lion.

"I am sad enough as it is."

"You couldn't be as sad as you deserve to be," the second Sea Lion said again.

"But tell me your story though. I doubt, however, if it will change my opinion."

"My mate was asleep on a rock," began the first Sea Lion. "I had been with my mate for a good many years.

"I loved my mate, I did."

"You had a queer way of showing your love," bellowed the second Sea Lion.

"Pray let me continue," said the first Sea Lion.

"All right," said the second Sea Lion, flapping the water very heavily.

"I really want to know what possible excuse you have to give. Your act seems quite inexcusable to me, quite inexcusable.

"Go ahead and tell me what you have to say."

"My mate was asleep and I was so hot, oh, I was crazy, mad, out of my head, it was so hot.

"I didn't know what I was doing, and I attacked my mate.

"The keeper came and others came with him. They tried to separate us, for my poor mate woke up and tried to defend herself.

"But I was out of my head with the heat, and before anything could be prevented I had killed my mate!

"Oh, Sea Lion, do not scold me. I know my deed was bad, very bad.

"I know that I am not thought the same of now as I used to be.

"I know that I do not deserve the same high opinion, and I know, too, that many animals suffer for the bad deed of one.

"No Wonder They Have Us in Different Tanks."

"Whenever one animal is treacherous or cruel or revengeful, or does a sly, terrible thing, people will say:

"You can't trust animals. You can't depend on them. There was as apparently good an animal as could be and see what he did!

"When one person is mean or treacherous all the people are not blamed, nor do they say that people cannot be trusted because one person has proved himself or herself unworthy of trust.

"But that is the way it is with animals. Hence my deed was worse on that account. Not only did I do such a terrible thing, but I was being disloyal to the animal kingdom.

"But remember this, Sea Lion neighbor, I have been punished.

"I miss my mate. I am lonely. The one I cared for most I have killed.

"Isn't that sorrow enough?

"Could there be any punishment greater than to feel lonely and know it was one's own fault and that one had killed one's companion?

"Please pity me for my bad deed, for I am to be pitied," ended the Sea Lion.

And the second Sea Lion shook his head sadly.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY Prescott Occupies Bunker Hill by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

KNOWING THAT THE BRITISH INTENDED TO SEIZE THE HEIGHTS BEHIND CHARLESTOWN, THE AMERICAN LEADERS PLANNED TO MAKE THE FIRST MOVE AND FORTIFY BUNKER HILL THEMSELVES.—
ON THE NIGHT OF APRIL 16, 1775, COLONEL PRESCOTT WAS SENT, WITH 1200 MEN, TO OCCUPY THE HILL AND BE PREPARED TO DEFEND IT. —

COPYRIGHT, 1925 BY THE McCLURE NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE

UNDER COVER OF THE DARKNESS, PRESCOTT'S MEN LABORED ALL NIGHT THROWING UP A LOW RAMPART OF EARTH ACROSS THE TOP OF THE HILL.—BEFORE MORNING THE SLIGHT FORTIFICATION WAS COMPLETED —
(NOTE — PRESCOTT'S REDOUBTS LAY ON BREED'S HILL A SMALLER EMINENCE IN ADVANCE OF BUNKER HILL, BUT THE BATTLE WAS NAMED FOR THE LATTER) —

IN THE MORNING GENERAL GAGE ON LOOKING THROUGH HIS SPY-GLASS WAS ASTOUNDED TO SEE THE EARTHWORKS ON THE HILL AND THE FORM OF COLONEL PRESCOTT WALKING ABOUT ON THE CREST. —
WHEN TOLD THAT PRESCOTT WOULD FIGHT "AS LONG AS A DROP OF BLOOD IS LEFT IN HIS VEINS," GAGE DECIDED TO TAKE THE HILL BY ASSAULT. —

THREE THOUSAND REDCOATS, UNDER THE COMMAND OF GENERAL HOWE, WERE SENT OVER TO CHARLESTOWN WITH ORDERS TO TAKE THE HILLS THAT LAY BEYOND THE TOWN AT ALL COSTS.
THEIR ADVANCE WAS GUARDED BY THE FIRE OF THE BRITISH WARSHIPS —
TOMORROW—THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL.

SEEDING THE LAWN.

Right Kind Important—Fall Seeding Advocated

Establishing new lawns or rejuvenating old lawns may well be done in the fall of the year according to the seed analyst at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva who advocates fall seeding because the grass can make an earlier start in the spring when sown at this season.

Aside from the time of seeding, the battle is half won in making a good lawn with the use of clean, vigorous seed mixtures containing the right kind of grasses for lawn seeding, declares this authority who warns against the dangers of poor lawn grass mixtures.

Many mixtures have been placed on the market as lawn grass mixtures which upon examination at the State Seed Laboratory, have been found to contain a high percentage of chaff and dirt and many kinds of weed seeds, and to be made up quite largely of grasses entirely unsuited for lawn purposes.

The purchase of high grade Kentucky bluegrass seed and redtop seed and mixing them at home at the rate of two parts bluegrass to one part redtop is advocated as an excellent means of securing a really desirable general purpose lawn grass mixture. A small amount of white dutch clover may be added to the mixture if one likes clover. This mixture should be sown at the rate of one-half ounce per square yard for old lawns or one ounce per square yard for a new lawn and should be raked in lightly.

WOMAN ASKS BULLETIN TO FIX SAWS HERSELF

Cornell bulletins help women as well as men to farm better and more easily.

A woman writes from Fredericksburg, Virginia, and says: "I am a woman farmer, and my saws are dull and the neighborhood men are too busy with their own saws to fix mine.

"Please send extension bulletin 94 to the address below and I'll try it myself."

The letter was written August 3, and by the afternoon of August 6 the bulletin was on its way to Virginia to help this woman fix her saws.

During the month of July, 77,136 publications were distributed to the public from the state college of agriculture at Ithaca. More than eighteen thousand of these were in answer to personal requests by mail, and more than seven thousand were given to persons calling at the mailing room in Ithaca.

The remainder were sent to schools, meetings, fairs, and the like and to persons on the technical mailing lists of the college. This is a low figure for the monthly distribution, which runs in the winter to as high as 125,000. Farmers' reading habits vary inversely with the amount of work to be done outdoors, as would be expected, and in the winter the mailing room is one of the busiest at the college.

The most popular single pamphlet is E 47, the list of publications, which is revised monthly to include any new bulletins which have appeared since its last number. This is free to all who will write to the college at Ithaca for it.

Four-Leaved Clover Has Long Been Luck Symbol

That a four-leaved clover will bring luck to the one who finds it is an ancient superstition, and there can be no way of learning for a certainty how it started. Old writers suggest that its resemblance to the form of the cross is the root of the notion.

"The person who carries a leaf of the four-leafed cruciform clover about with him," asserts one of them, "will be successful at play, and he will dream of his beloved, or the maiden may, by slipping a leaf into her lover's shoe without his knowledge, as he is about to set out on a journey, secure his sure and safe return to her embrace."

It may be noted that the three-leaved clover also had some virtue, because it symbolized the Trinity, and the tradition is that St. Patrick converted the whole Irish people to Christianity by showing them, through the trifoliate leaf of the shamrock, how the three persons in the Godhead might exist and yet be one.

Earliest Book Plates

It probably was because books were so few and precious in that early dawn of bookmaking and printing and illustrating that the first book plates were not as book plates are today. A king or queen or lord or lady did not have printed a mere tag, reading: "This book belongs to Beatrice Aragon." Instead, Beatrice of Aragon, for her book plate, had her picture together with the picture of her husband, Matthias I, Corvinus, king of Hungary 1458-90, at the foot of page two in their joint book, "De Spiritu Sancto," written by Sigismundus de Sigismundis and illuminated by Attavante dell Attavanti.

All in all, these early days of books had much in their favor. You didn't have to worry much about borrowed volumes. You had no worries, either, about sectional bookcases. Your one volume was per se a first edition.

Corrects Receding Chins

Receding chins are now being fixed by New York surgeons. By means of a special plate, it is possible to throw the lower jaw forward, so that the molar teeth meet in their proper position. This plate has the effect of making the patient bite forward, with the result, in most cases, that the receding chin eventually becomes normal.

Three Workmen Are Electrocuted

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17.—Three men were electrocuted and a fourth badly burned today when workmen on the new St. Thomas Catholic Church and school dragged an elevator guy wire across a high tension street light wire.

The accident occurred shortly before noon when the streets were crowded with school children.

The sudden electrical flash and cries of the men as they dropped to the ground resulted in a near panic. Several children became hysterical.

The four men had been instructed to aid in moving the guy wires of the construction elevator, which was being used to hoist stone, concrete and other building materials.

While walking with the wire, it came in contact with the street arc light wire, and the men were killed instantly.

An investigation of the accident will be made at once, Deputy Coroner George Berg said.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Sept. 17.—Stocks sold higher today, and many of the best known market performers established new high record prices for the year. Except for occasional waves of profit taking and some professional short selling, conditions were favorable to an extension of the upward movement, with call money glutting the market at 3½ per cent, forward orders of equipment, steel and copper companies expanding, speculative fever rising and stocks breaking through to the highest level of the year.

The motor stocks held their lead as the most active group in the whole market, but active buying continued in the equipment, copper, mercantile and specialty stocks, with rails and oils constituting the principal laggards.

General Motors retained its strength on rumors of an extra dividend of $2 a share. Kelsey Wheel was a strong leader in the accessory stocks, with a five point rise to 105½, a new high for the year. Rubber and tire stocks held most of their new gains. Studebaker, Packard, Pierce Arrow, etc., absorbed a huge amount of profit taking and sold near the top prices of the movement.

Reports that equipment companies had ordered 200,000 tons of steel for car and engine construction led to active buying of American Car and Foundry and American Locomotive. Symington was the leader in the low priced equipment stocks with a three point advance in the common to 19½ and a 2¼ point advance in the Class A stock. Pullman sold six points higher.

American Can pushed through to 250 in active trading at which level offerings were very heavy. Bullish pools in the other high priced stocks advanced prices from two to six points in the third hour, after profit taking had run its course and the general market was again inclined upward.

Oil stocks were inactive rather than weak while Standard Oils in the Curb market made a fair proportion of price gains. Consolidated Gas at the head of the utility stocks reached a new high at 92. The balance of this list was inactive as also were the railroad shares.

Select Morrow Chairman of Aircraft Board

Aircraft Investigation Board Instructed to Go to the Bottom and Promised a Free Hand—Receives Protest Against H. E. Coffin's Membership on Jury.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Instructed by President Coolidge to go to the bottom of the aircraft controversy, and promised a free hand in its investigation, the aircraft investigating board of organized at the White House today with Dwight W. Morrow, New York banker, a classmate of the president's, as chairman.

Summoned by President Coolidge because of charges by Colonel "Billy" Mitchell that there has been "almost treasonable administration" of the country's air services, members of the jury met with the chief executive and from him personally received instructions to go to the bottom of the ugly situation created by Mitchell's charges.

A free hand and no restrictions were promised the investigators. The president's principal request was that the jury return him some kind of a report by the last of November, ten weeks hence, that will enable him to report to Congress the following week the progress made in getting at "the truth about the air service."

The future governmental policy toward military and naval aviation as well as toward the development of commercial aviation, may be said to hinge to some extent upon the findings of the jury in its investigation and examination of witnesses during the next two months.

It was expected when the members of the president's commission gathered this morning that Dwight W. Morrow of Englewood, N. J., banker, lawyer, and former army officer, would be elected to the chairmanship of the commission Morrow was a classmate of the president's at Amherst and has been one of his trusted unofficial advisers.

Other members of the commission are Major General James G Harbord, former chief of staff of the army; Rear Admiral Frank F Fletcher, U. S N., retired; Howard E. Coffin, aeronautical engineer; Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut; Judge Arthur C. Dennison of Michigan; William F. Durand of Los Angeles, aeronautical engineer, and two members of congress, Representatives Carl Vinson, Democrat of Georgia, and James S. Parker, Republican of New York.

Methods of procedure and details of how the investigation is to be conducted will be left to the jury's determination.

Even as the members of the aircraft grand jury gathered at the White House there came another protest against the selection of Howard E. Coffin on the board

In a letter to President Coolidge, the Coronite Manufacturing Company, W W. Christman, president, Long Island City, protested against Coffin's membership, and declared his sitting was "embarrassing to all of your appointees."

"This committee begins under a cloud of suspcion and the findings will not be taken seriously by the American people," stated the communication.

"Colonel Mitchell is unquestionably right in his surmise charges and presentation of the situation. This country has no airplane worthy of the name and will never have a service worthy of the country until proper steps are taken to make a clear sweep of methods so detrimental to the future welfare of the nation."

A similar protest against Coffin's selection was made a few days ago by the Americn Society for the Promotion of Aviation Coffin was in charge of the production end of the air service during the war

Missing Woman's Body Found Near Mountain Top

Woman Who Disappeared at West Saugerties on August 21 Had Wandered Two and a Half Miles from Highway—Body Found one Day After Offer of Reward Expired.

The body of Anna Knaspert, who disappeared on August 21 from West Saugerties where she was staying with relatives, was found Wednesday afternoon by Matthew Burns and son who reside in the Platte Clove section while they were in the woods gathering herbs and berries.

When found the body was so badly decomposed that it was almost impossible to identify it except from a set of false teeth and a ring which she wore. The body was found about 2½ miles from the road and about an equal distance from the place where she disappeared with almost impassable wooded country between.

Leaving the road near the place known as the "Devil's Kitchen," at the top of the mountain and back in the woods about 2½ miles, the body was found In order to get there it is necessary to descend one mountin and ascend half up the next peak. How a woman of her age and physical condition could have made the trip baffles those who viewed the spot where the body was found.

A reward of $500 had been offered by Peter Elliott of West Saugerties, a relative. The reward was offered up to September 15, 1925, while the body was found on September 16.

When the body was found Corporal Johnston of the State Troopers at Tannersville was notified and also the Ulster county sheriff's office. This morning Sergeant Cunningham, Dr. E H. Loughran and representatives of the sheriff's office accompanied Sheriff Wells to the spot. The sheriff was notified of the finding of the body late Wednesday afternoon but a trip to the source of information near the top of the mountain at Platte Clove failed to produce any results Wednesday evening, the party who gave information to the authorities informing them that it would be impossible to make the trip to the spot where the body was during darkness.

Americans Are More Thrifty

Federal Reserve Board Figures Disclose That Savings Accounts Increased More Than a Half Billion Dollars over August 1, 1924.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, Sept 17.—Americans are becoming thriftier and thriftier —all wailings about "spend thrift America" to the contrary notwithstanding

Figures made public today by the Federal Reserve Board disclosed that in 902 principal banks on August first, savings accounts amounted to $7,903,000,000, a gain of more than half a billion dollars over August first, 1924, or nearly $5 for every man woman and child in the country

The figures disclose, however, a drop of about $75,000,000 from the previous month's figures, but board officials attributed this to the fact that July is "vacation month."

The New York district led the country with thirty banks reporting savings deposits of $2,098,000,000 August first. Boston took second with $1,324,310,000 and San Francisco third with $1,115,638,000

Straight Talks with Aunt Emmy

ON "GOLD BONDS"

"BEFORE I go to the bank to ask advice about investing the money mother left me, I wish you would tell me something more about bonds," said Helen to Aunt Emmy. "Am I right in thinking that gold bonds are absolutely safe? Are gold bonds what people mean by gilt edge securities?"

"What a child it is!" laughed Aunt Emmy. "I can see that you do need to learn something about bonds. The term 'gold bond' does not have anything to do with the term 'gilt edged security.' The latter is nothing more than a commonly used phrase that means a safe security. Companies that issue gold bonds usually agree to redeem them in United States gold coin of the weight and fineness of the gold coin issued by the United States Treasury at the time the bonds are put on the market.

"This is done in order to protect the bondholders from the very remote possibility of a radical change in the value of United States currency, such as, for example, the changes in the values of German and other European currencies as a result of the war. While such a thing is unlikely to occur in this country, financiers always try to guard against every possible trouble. Although a bond may be payable in gold it is unnecessary to demand payment in actual gold coin since our American money is on a gold basis anyhow and our good old paper dollars have exactly the same value as golden dollars

"But you want to bear in mind one thing. Because you buy a so-called 'gold bond' that does not mean that the bond is secured by gold in any way, or that it is stronger than any other bond. The strength of a bond lies simply and only in the ability of the company that issues it to pay its debts. And of course you should consider the value of the property pledged or mortgaged to secure the bond, if any property is given as security."

"Dear me, Aunt Emmy," exclaimed Helen, "I never realized how much one needs to know before investing one's money. In my case it's awfully important not to have a loss, because although I have only a tiny amount of money it is all I have in the world How can I ever learn to tell what is good from what is bad?"

"I am not sure you ever can rely on your own judgment, my dear," smiled Aunt Emmy, "but if you will be guided by your bank, you needn't worry."—A. B. Aymes.

ON GUARD AGAINST FARM CROOKS

With every constructive movement for the improvement of agriculture, one is likely to find men who will attempt to capitalize it for their own personal benefit. This may take the form of shipping in poor and unprofitable livestock to palm off on unsuspecting farmers, or it may sometimes be selling fair to good livestock at exorbitant prices under promise of taking back some of the offspring at high figures.

There are several instances where the college of agriculture through its county agent system has co-operated in heading off the introduction of undesirable or extravagantly priced livestock. In other instances the state bankers association through its agricultural committee or the secretary's office, has sent warnings to its member banks relative to individuals or firms operating on an unsound basis. It is as important to head off undesirable and unprofitable investments as it is to encourage constructive and profitable ones.—Banker-Farmer.

BANKERS HELP

The banks of Bedford county, Tennessee, are furnishing pure bred eggs to all who will agree to return one pullet for each fifteen eggs in the fall.

The Missouri Bankers Association issued the first number of the "Agricultural Information Service Quarterly" in April. This publication deals with timely agricultural subjects of interest to bankers. A discussion of the various projects proposed as a basis for the program of banker-farmer co-operation in Missouri appears in the first issue.

Clearing houses in Georgia have approved a proposal for the expenditure of $30,000 annually for the next three years for the purpose of carrying out a program of farm development and crop diversification in Georgia. The proposal was initiated by the Georgia Bankers Association. The plan calls for the creation of a state-wide development committee of thirty members which will function under the direction of the Agricultural Committee of the Georgia Bankers Association.

Nebraska bankers are going to school. The College of Agriculture is having a short course in agriculture for bankers. Registration is in charge of the Nebraska Bankers Association. The predominant thought is, "Every bank in Nebraska should be represented." Nine out of ten banks in one county have signed attendance cards Scores of the cards have been received by Dan V Stephens chairman of the Agricultural Committee of the Bankers Association, and he has received over a hundred letters on the short course.

Filipinos Continue to Believe in Talismans

A young Filipino descended from a "gatmaytan" or ancient feudal prince known as Maiki is seeking the enchanted kerchief which gave his illustrious ancestor supernatural powers, such as that of charming birds so that they would alight upon his extended finger, or philandering with other men's wives without arousing jealousy on the part of the offended husbands. The kerchief is known in the family traditions as "the kerchief from the angel in moon." With other talismans and amulets, it is supposed to have been secretly buried by the chieftain before he died. Each succeeding eldest son has searched for the spot in vain. American schools endeavor to disabuse the native mind of its belief in talismans, but the belief is still widespread; a mysticism almost abysmal in depth affects the psychology of the people.

It was only recently necessary for the police in a town adjoining Manila to take into custody an adolescent boy to whom thousands of the afflicted were going because it was said his possession of an enchantment bestowed upon him healing powers.

Not far from this town a gang of counterfeiters were recently raided by a constabulary squad. To conceal evidence the men threw their dies into a stream back of their shanty. Washerwomen later found one of the dies, and when they cleaned it they discovered the image of Maria Cristina, queen regent of Spain prior to King Alfonso's coming of age. The old woman conceived this image to be that of the Virgin, and soon a story was abroad that the die (of the true nature of which no one had the least conception, not even the local officials) had been miraculously hidden in the stream bed and that a great blessing would ensue from its discovery. From surrounding towns people by thousands began making pilgrimages to the fortunate village, to adore the image and receive its blessing.

What Are the Fruits of Interconnection?

THE GROWTH of the Central Hudson System of gas and electric companies since the first steps were taken in a program of inter-connection of power sources, has not been a matter of accident or chance.

Early in the present century, the value became apparent of linking sources of electric energy, to the end that users might be insured a better and more dependable supply of current.

Communities that had enjoyed only night service were assured of dependable twenty-four hour service.

In case of a breakdown at the plant, energy available from outside sources insured quick resumption of service.

Industries could be provided with large quantities of power as a result of interconnection.

An incidental development was the elimination of different kinds of service in various localities and the substitution of one standard service.

It was demonstrated also that operating economies could be effected and it has been possible not only to keep rates down to pre-war figures, but electricity actually is costing the consumer less than ever.

It was found that a logical step after interconnection, in many cases, was unified management which led to consolidation of companies.

All this has not been a program of expansion for the sake of mere bigness, but all to the end that users of electricity might have better service. The Central Hudson System, therefore, is the outgrowth of an idea based upon sound economic principles and practices.

Greatest Light to Dazzle Visitors

Six Billion, Three Hundred Million Candle Power Blaze Will Rival Sun's Brilliance at the "Sesqui" at Philadelphia.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Sept. 17.—The greatest blaze of light ever concentrated in one spot, rivalling the sun, will dazzle visitors and Philadelphians alike during the Sesquicentennial Exposition, opening June 1, 1926. This light will have 6,300,000,000 candle power, greater by far in intensity than any beam heretofore developed.

Announcement that this record-breaking feat of electrical engineering will be part of the Sesquicentennial Exposition lighting plan was made this week by Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick following a conference with illumination specialists of the Westinghouse Lamp Company, who had been working on the project for months, and the members of the Executive Committee of the Sesquicentennial Exposition Association The mayor laid special emphasis upon the fact that this light will be only one unit of the comprehensive plan of illumination which, at night, will virtually give the Exposition grounds and principal streets and buildings of the city daylight brilliance.

At the conference the marvelous lighting plan was explained to Mayor Kendrick and the committee by D W Atwater, Westinghouse expert, who asserted the main beam of light, which he likened to a double aurora, would be visible in New York, a distance of more than 90 miles under proper atmospheric conditions The curvature of the earth, he added, would be the only thing to prevent its being seen at greater distances

This incomparable concentration of light will be located in the rear of Philadelphia's $25,000,000 Art Museum, at the entrance to Fairmount Park. With the light as a background, the architecturally beautiful Museum will stand out in silhouette and present a scene of unrivaled grandeur.

The light according to Mr. Atwater, will be in the form of a double aurora, consisting of fourteen gigantic Sperry searchlights each of 450,000,000 candle power A color screen is to be used on each projector, and the fan-shaped auroras will cross each other, painting against the darkness of the sky a blazing textile of light in diamond shaped patterns of every known tone The effect will be that of an immense curtain of intermingling vivid colors, varying in design and color when the position of the lights is changed and rivalling the Aurora Borealis in spectacular results.

Against this striking background will be outlined the classic Museum building which will be softly floodlighted in golden tones The spectacle will surpass any previously planned, both from a standpoint of quantity of light and beauty of effect. A large oil painting, made by Wiard B. Ihnen, a noted motion picture and screen artist, which has been photographed, shows how the Museum will appear.

"It will be necessary to have a man in constant attendance at each of the fourteen projectors," Mr. Atwater explained, "and in addition to the curtain effect, many different effects can be obtained, such as playing the lights on, smoke released from aeroplanes over the Museum and obtaining, with the colored rays, sunset and moonlight effects. In fact, it is estimated that about 400 different effects may be obtained by varying the arrangements of the lights, so that the spectacle will never lose interest."

The Art Museum is only one of the prominent public buildings to be illuminated during the Sesquicentennial. Among the others are the City Hall, including the famous statue of William Penn, surmounting its tower, Historic Independence Hall, and the new Free Library.

The mile long parkway between the Museum and City Hall is also to be decorated and lighted, unusual color effects being planned for the Logan Circle fountain, and special illumination and decorative effect will be arranged for each convention scheduled for Philadelphia during the Sesqui. Elaborate plans are also being made in cooperation with Colonel D. C. Collier, Director-General of the Exposition, for the illumination of the Sesquicentennial grounds.

FIVE SCHEDULED BOUTS END BY KNOCKOUTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 17.—Sport fans are searching their dope books today for an event to equal that of last night's show at the Olympic Arena, in which every one of the five scheduled bouts was ended by a knockout.

Benny Gersh of Cleveland, featherweight, disposed of Benny Gould of New York, former featherweight champion of Canada, in the second round.

Johnny Datto, Filipino, used only one punch to dispose of Jack Nichols, of Detroit.

Tommy Freeman, known as the Arkansas Assassin, knocked out Henry Shaw, New York colored welterweight, in the third round.

Sammy Dorfman knocked out Steve Mack in the third round, and Jack McFarlind of St. Paul scored a technical knockout over Jack Sharkey of Cleveland in the first round.

German Press On Security Pact

Welcomes Invitation of the Allies for Germany to Participate in Pact Conference — Nationalist Warns Against Speedy Decision.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Sept. 17.—The Democratic-Socialist press, united today in welcoming the invitation of the Allies for Germany to participate in the security pact conference, the time and date of which are yet to be selected.

Although these papers declared that there was an apparent intention on the part of the Allies to cease dictating to Germany in international matters such as the proposed security pact, the nationalist press was not so optimistic and warned against a precipitate decision by the government. Foreign Minister Stresemann, it was indicated today, probably will take the matter up with the Cabinet early next week.

Urging that Stresemann and his advisers proceed cautiously, the Lokal Anzeiger nationalist organ, said that Germany could afford to wait until she was paid the price that would take care of all her interests, while the Germania, organ of the Centrist party, urged a speedy decision, pointing out that there were indications that the United States would change its attitude of aloofness toward the League of Nations as soon as the security pact is concluded by European powers. The Dawes plan and the foreign debt settlements being made by the United States, said Germania, give America an invisible protectorate over Europe, resulting in its consolidation.

Rote Fahne, (Red Flag), the Communist newspaper, declared that an anti-Soviet war pact was imminent as result of the security negotiations.

WALKER IN GOOD SHAPE WHEN HE MEETS SHADE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 17.—For the first time in his career Mickey Walker will be in real fighting condition when he steps in the ring on Monday night to defend his welterweight title against Dave Shade, according to a statement made today by Jack Kearns. He predicted that the champion would win by a knockout inside of ten rounds.

"You will see Walker in real condition for the first time in his life," Kearns declared. "He was not right against Harry Greb. He weighed 152 pounds and that took away some of his speed. He has never done his road work properly and that made him blow up in the middle of his fights. He won't blow up against Shade."

Veterans' Bureau Opposes Merger

Union With Department of Education and Relief Held Hostile to Their Interests — Leaders Say Present Organizations Should Not Be Severed Unwisely.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Indications today are that a hard fight is in prospect unless the Veterans' Bureau is withdrawn from the proposed merger with the projected new Department of Education and Relief before the matter is presented to congress in December by President Coolidge.

Repeated stories from the Summer White House that the president will force the reorganization of government departments during the coming session have served to arouse former service men to perfect plans of opposition so far as the Veterans' Bureau is concerned.

Opposed to Plan.

The Disabled American Veterans have taken a determined stand on the matter, and National Commander John W. Mahan of Montana, at the Washington office of the D. A. V., said the organization of the wounded men will fight to the finish unless the Veterans' Bureau is withdrawn from the plan.

"Immediately after demobilization thousands of wounded men were in almost a frenzy chasing from one place to another in an endeavor to obtain relief and we have no intention to allow a repetition of the old chaotic conditions," said Commander Mahan.

"We had the War Risk Insurance Bureau handling compensation and insurance, the United States Public Health Service directing medical treatment and hospitalization and we had the Federal Board for Vocational Education trying to decide upon training for the men who could not return to their pre-war work.

"Things were in such a mess that President Harding, following advice of veterans, merged the agencies in the Veterans' Bureau, and, while that organization has never been entirely satisfactory, it is at least theoretically justified and should not be torn apart when the disabled are commencing to obtain the benefits which the people intend they should receive.

Fear Unskilled Head.

"The head of the proposed department would, in all probability, be a school teacher utterly unfamiliar with the problems of the disabled and under him would be an assistant secretary who would be expected to handle the disabled.

"This plan simply puts the whole institution farther away from the president and congress, would probably mean the loss of many of the most valuable men now in the bureau and would give anything but satisfaction to the man for whom the whole work of relief has been undertaken.

"The D. A. V. is for any reasonable proposal to put more business into government and favors any reasonable economy, so if there is to be a reorganization of the federal departments there will be no objection on the part of the organization, except that the Veterans' Bureau must be left alone," concluded the D. A. V. leader.

Schoonmaker regarding their contribution for the luncheon.

Most Powerful Car of Its Size and Weight

—a One-Profit Value

THERE are (as you probably know) only two manufacturers who actually build their cars complete—make all their own bodies, engines, clutches, springs, gear sets, differentials, steering gears, axles, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

One of these is Ford—in the low priced field. The other is Studebaker in the fine car field.

This one-profit principle of manufacture makes possible four great advantages.

1. It eliminates the extra profits and overhead that many other manufacturers have to pay and include in the purchase price to you. This keeps Studebaker prices low.

2. It enables us to build a better car because the vital parts are designed, engineered and manufactured complete by one organization. Being built as a unit—Studebaker cars function as a unit, with all of the advantages of unit over assembled construction.

3. It makes possible finer quality because Studebaker, being an independent manufacturer, with no subsidiary or allied companies to favor, is free to buy on the open market, demanding the finest materials at the lowest possible price. Studebaker purchasing agents are unrestricted in their search for quality and value. Studebaker designers and engineers are unhampered by outside interests.

4. And, finally, because of these one-profit savings, Studebaker is able to offer you a sturdier, more substantially built automobile. We pay a premium for the finest steel. We use hard wood in body construction. Plate glass in the windows. The finest grades of upholstery. Genuine full-size balloon tires. Unusually fine interior trim with no exposed tacks, and heavy hardware. Throughout the entire car—in hundreds of hidden places—you find the same high quality of materials and workmanship that you see out in the open.

The Standard Six Coach shown below is a splendid example of One-Profit value.

It offers greater power than any other car of its size and weight, based upon the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. And luxurious riding comfort made possible by the big balloon tires, resilient springs, comfortable cushions and ample roominess.

But the only way to judge this car is use it—drive it! Feel the luxurious upholstery. Sit in the deep, soft, comfortable seats. Experience the surge of its tremendous power. And then compare it with other coaches.

The recent Studebaker price reduction and policy of "no yearly models" only serves to emphasize the logic of this reasoning.

If you seek a bargain in a quality car—by all means see this One-Profit Coach.

AMERICANS WILL INVEST IF PEACE IS PROBABLE.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—The coming of M. Caillaux French Minister of Finance, and his associates to confer on the funding of France's debt to the United States means more than appears in the simple statement that France is sending a commission to negotiate a debt funding agreement. It means that if a definite settlement is reached the French will have disposed of one embarrassing diplomatic problem,—one that has had a dampening effect on international relations for several years past.

With the terms of the settlement agreed upon by both nations there is but little doubt that individuals will be willing to subscribe to foreign loans which, of course, means the use of American capital for business enterprises in Europe. The money market of this country is ready and anxious for good investments abroad, the needs of our own country having been well taken care of by investors. If Europe is wise enough to see that a further step in disarmament will assist in her economic rehabilitation then there is but little doubt that she will look more favorably upon another disarmament conference.

American capital, of course, does not desire to loan money to a country when there is any probability of that nation using the money for war purposes. As it stands today there are nearly a million more men under arms in Europe than there were previous to the World War. Europe must recognize the fact that if she is to obtain American dollars she must make more than a gesture towards insuring international peace.

FARLEY WILL APPOINT ALL OFFICIALS IN PERSON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 17.—In an effort to prevent a repetition of the unsatisfactory decisions rendered in local boxing contests, James E. Farley, chairman of the New York Commission, stated today that, in the future, he would make all appointments of referees and judges in person and would not make known his selections until just before the bouts went on.

Tommy Sheridan, referee, and Gene Sampson, a judge, will not be allowed to officiate again in this state according to Farley. Both voted the recent bout between Willie Harmon and K. O. Phil Kaplan a draw, although it was said that Harmon was ahead on points by a wide margin.

Hylan Not to Run On Third Ticket

Has No Plans to Enter Third Ticket in New York Mayoralty Contest—Will Retire to Private Life—Hylan's Letter to McCooey.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 17.—Mayor John F. Hylan is definitely out of the mayoralty campaign, his political mentor, John H. McCooey of Brooklyn, declared today. The mayor will not be a candidate on the third ticket and has not made any plans for introducing a third ticket party in the field, McCooey said.

Supporters of State Senator James J. Walker who defeated Hylan for the Democratic nomination by a majority of more than 95,000 votes, had professed to believe that Mayor Hylan would either run on a third ticket or would back a third ticket headed by some other candidate.

These reports had persisted despite Mayor Hylan's statement yesterday that he "would retire to private life."

"Mayor Hylan will abide by the result of the primary," McCooey said. "I never had any doubt the mayor would stand by the agreement he made with me to accept the verdict in the primary. I have known him for more than 30 years and in all that time I have never known him to break his word.

"I know nothing and the mayor knows nothing of any plans to enter a third ticket in the election. I have talked with the mayor this morning by telephone and the situation has not not changed. He will retire to private life. I have also talked with Judge Olvany, (the leader of Tammany Hall) and will dine with him today when plans will be made for the election campaign."

McCooey made public a letter from Mayor Hylan. It said:

"Dear Mr. McCooey: I take this opportunity to thank you and through you the Democratic men and women of Kings county who stood loyally by me in the contest just closed. As the vote cast in the borough of Brooklyn was unprecedented in primary campaign, I have a very deep appreciation of the tremendous preliminary work which was involved. Your personal letter of endorsement carried a straight forward appeal and to all who responded my heartiest thanks are extended.

"I am quite candid in acknowledging that throughout my political life your staunch support has been one of my greatest incentives to carry on. Your personal friendship I have always esteemed and valued.

BANDITS ESCAPE AFTER BATTLE WITH PATROLMAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Quincy, Mass., Sept. 17.—Three auto bandits had dug open the safe of the Colonial gasoline filling station, Foster and Washington streets, early today when Patrolman Thomas F. McNally came on the scene.

From the door of the filling station the bandits opened fire on the policeman. He returned the fire.

Dropping the safe, the bandits ran to their waiting automobile and escaped.

Progress on China Situation

American Point of View on Question of China Wins Partial Victory—Powers Expected to Meet December 18 Next in Pekin.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The row between the great powers over the question of China appeared today to be on the road to settlement with a partial victory for the American point of view.

The state department's suggestion to the powers that a conference to revise China's treaty relations with the rest of the world be held in Pekin on December 18 next, is expected to be accepted by all concerned.

The suggestion for the conference was carried over the market antagonism which, mainly in London and Paris, greeted Secretary of State Kellogg's original declaration that the time has arrived for the powers once and for all to state whether they will give up the extra-territoriality they have enjoyed in China for years.

With the actual machinery for the conference now in motion, following acceptance by the powers of China's suggestion that commissioners be appointed to discuss extra-territoriality, a recession of the anti-foreign agitation which has swept China during recent months was being generally awaited today.

Treaty nations now maintain their own judiciary in China which dispenses justice to foreigners while Chinese courts are limited to acting only in cases involving their own nationals.

It is claimed that the Chinese judicial system is not sufficiently modern to properly dispense justice to foreigners. Codification of Chinese law, long suggested by the powers as the first step in their relinquishment of extra-territorial rights, is now reported to be under way.

JUDGE ARNOLD WINS IN DUTCHESS COUNTY

County Judge C. W. H. Arnold of Poughkeepsie was renominated by Republicans of Dutchess county in Tuesday's primary election, defeating Elijah T. Russell of the town of Washington by 1,591 majority. Judge Arnold had the backing of the Republican county organization. He carried Poughkeepsie by a majority of 966.

Maurice J. McDermott, Poughkeepsie ball player who is well known in Kingston, won the Democratic nomination for supervisor in the First Ward, Poughkeepsie, defeating John J. Delaney.

CHRISTIANS DRIVEN OUT OF HAURAN DISTRICT

New York, Sept. 17.—American schools in the towns of the Hauran districts of Syria, where the Druses tribesmen are in revolt against the French have been destroyed, according to advices reaching the Near East Relief headquarters here today.

"Nearly all the Christian towns in the district called Hauran have been burned and the population driven out," said a cablegram.

COBRA SPITS DEATH FROM FIFTEEN FEET

Jungle Has Many Other Deadly Denizens.

To end a controversy over the death-dealing effect of a "spitting" cobra at a distance of 15 feet, C. Emerson Brown, superintendent of the Zoological gardens, is in possession of additional expert advice that upholds his contention.

"Publicity given the purchase of the deadly collection of snakes which were brought here from New York has aroused doubt in the minds of a number of persons who have informed me in writing and by telephone that they do not believe the snakes are so deadly," said Mr. Brown.

"One man wrote me he would not be afraid to face the pair of 'spitting' cobras at a distance of 15 feet, without any barriers between them. Of course, I do not believe he would, but he won't be given a chance, anyhow," added Mr. Brown.

Mr. Brown then offered a letter from Raymond Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the Bronx zoo, in New York, who is reputed to be the greatest authority on reptiles in this country. The letter reads:

"The black cobras that spit poison are the most dangerous of reptiles and can spit venom 15 feet with deadly precision and effect. At that distance, poison hurled 4 feet high on the glass of a case containing the species has clouded the glass.

"This condition prevailed here recently, when the cobras sent you and the ones here in the zoo were exhibited for the first time to visitors. The glass had to be washed so the snakes could be seen properly.

"Regarding the inquisitive gentleman who would face the cobras at a distance of 15 feet, he should equip himself with a bucket of permanganate of potash solution to duck his head in to counteract the effect of the venom.

"Such an emphatic demonstration or lesson in natural history as he would stage might teach him something tangible about the ways of African cobras, if he survived."

The "spitting" cobra, like those in the zoo, are black, with red blotches on their underside, and the ones in the zoo are six feet long and about three inches in diameter. The snakes are in specially constructed cages.

Of the seven deadly cobras in the zoo, Mr. Brown says the green cobra of the Mamba species is the fastest snake in the world and strikes beyond its length in any direction with its head about five feet from the ground. The green snake is twelve feet long, has long fangs and is less than one inch in diameter. Mr. Brown added the green cobra strikes without giving a warning, and does not have to be "egged" to do it, either.—Philadelphia Record.

Better Train Handling

Passenger engineers are studying the effect of "taking up slack" in a long train by riding in the rear of such a train under a plan devised for better handling effected by the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac railroad, according to Railway Review. In this way the enginemen are impressed by the fact that the handling of the train, which they thought performed with due caution from their cab, was attended with serious discomfort to those in the rear cars. The plan has worked out satisfactorily, not only from the actual physical experience of the enginemen's observations, but from the psychological factor which entered into the operation.

Had an Alibi

"Want to join the Legion, buddy?" asked a Legionnaire of a husky young man of about his own age.

"Can't; wasn't in the service."

"Why weren't you?" the veteran demanded.

"My intentions were good," was the rather reluctant explanation. "I went to a recruiting office where they put me in a room and told me to take off my clothes. A doctor walked up to me, looked at me kinda hard, an' then thumped me on the chest. I wasn't in the habit of letting strangers get rough with me, so I thumped his chest—an' I didn't get out of the hospital until the war was over."—American Legion Weekly.

Nature Was Before Them

At Bronson, Minn., Charles Falk chose a rainy afternoon for butchering his fatted hog because the weather was not suitable for other work, and with the assistance of a neighbor the necessary preparations were made. When everything was ready the men proceeded to the pig-house to administer the stunning blow, but to their amazement found the porker dead near the door. It was found that lightning had killed the animal.

Wiring Diagram of a Three-Tube Set That Is Selective Enough for Use in Metropolitan Areas and Which Gives Fine Quality of Signals.

By J. E. ANDERSON,
In Radio World.

The three-tube set shown in the diagram is a stand-by that brings in all the local stations with loud speaker volume of moderate intensity but wonderful quality. Utmost simplicity of operation consistent with satisfactory selectivity, greatest purity of tone obtainable with standard parts, and strictest economy of operation were the objects sought.

To obtain simplicity of operation a double condenser was used for the two tuned circuits. For selectivity a low-loss tuning coil was used in the radio-frequency amplifier and this stage was made regenerative. A crystal detector and two high-grade audio-frequency transformers were selected. For economy of operation dry-cell tubes were employed.

Winding the Coils.

The coils L0, L1, T are the three winding of a standard three-circuit tuner. It may be any of a number of low-loss coils on the market. L2 and L3 constitute a home-made radio-frequency transformer. The core is a 1-inch diameter birch dowel 1 inch long. This is made into a spool by cementing two insulating washers 1¼ inches in diameter to the two ends. The primary winding L3 is wound next to the core and it consists of 20 turns of No. 36 double cotton-covered wire. This winding is covered with several layers of heavy wrapping paper. Then on top of this is wound the secondary L2, consisting of 98 turns of the same kind of wire. The secondary is wound in two layers since the wire used winds about 78 turns to the inch. The two layers were separated from each other in the same manner as were the two windings. A protective layer of mending tape was put over the secondary. The terminals of the two windings were brought out to small wood screws fastened in the ends of the wooden core and these were tinned for soldering connections. The transformer L2, L3 may be wound with heavier wire, or it may even be a low-loss RF tuning unit. In that case more room will be needed on the front cover.

Coil Adjustment.

It will be necessary to adjust the two coils so that the two tuned circuits L1 and L2 are in resonance with the same wave at some setting of the double condenser. This is best done by putting more turns on L2 than necessary and then removing a turn at a time until a given signal is loudest. In the present set the final adjustment left 22 turns on L2.

How Panel is Arranged.

At the lower left corner of the panel are the two binding posts for antenna and ground. Symmetrically placed in the right-hand corner are the two jacks. The single main control is in the center, which actuates the rotor of the double condenser. On the left of the main control is the knob controlling the tickler and on the right of it is the rheostat. Directly under the main control is the filament switch. The panel is 7 by 18 inches. The set was mounted in a cabinet 7 by 18 by 10¼ inches. A deep cabinet was selected so that all the batteries could be mounted back of the baseboard. Three No. 6 dry cells and two upright 22½-volt plate batteries are used, and these are securely held to the back of the cabinet by two brass strips.

Uses Crystal Detector.

The crystal employed is the new type carborundum fixed detector. This is stable in operation and very sensitive as compared with the usual fixed crystal detectors. However, it must be handled with reasonable care or the sensitive carborundum point, which rests against a burnished steel plate, may become crushed, which destroys the sensitivity.

The two audio-frequency transformers used are Federal 65 (first AF) and 65A (second AF). These were selected because they have a very satisfactory quality characteristic and will maintain the good quality delivered by the crystal.

There are two jacks, J1 for listening in on the first stage of audio and J2 for the last stage. The last should preferably be a filament-control jack which closes the filament circuit of the last tube when the plug is inserted in it. Otherwise put a switch in the FX lead of the last tube.

A single rheostat Rh is used to control the current in all the tubes. This is used mainly to take up the excess A battery voltage when the cells are new over the "discharge" voltage. A 6 to 10-ohm rheostat is sufficient. Most of the excess filament battery voltage is taken up in the resistances R. Each of these is of such magnitude that the voltage drop is about .8 volt, and this drop is used as the bias on the grids of the amplifiers. These resistances are small coils of nichrome wire. Amperites of the proper type may be used in place of these resistances, and in that case the single rheostat may be dispensed with, or it may be inserted in series with the filament of the first tube only.

List of Parts.

Parts required for the construction of the set are:

One low-loss three-circuit tuning coil (L0, L1, T).

One RF tuning coil (L3, L2).

One double condenser with vernier dial, .0005 mfd. (National).

Two audio-frequency transformers.

One fixed carborundum crystal (Cr).

One double-circuit jack and one single-circuit jack (J1, J2).

Three sockets.

Three ballast resistances or Amperites (R).

One rheostat, six to ten ohms (Rh).

One filament switch (S).

Six binding posts.

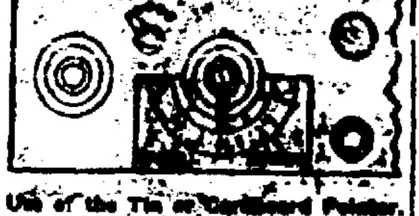
One small knob for tickler control.

One panel 7 by 18 inches and one baseboard to match.

Dial Chart That Will Aid Inexperienced Fan

Here is an easy way to have a less informed member of the family tune in any station desired. To avoid lengthy charts do not tune to numbers and mark but to the station direct. It may not work so good on other sets but it could not work better on a Cockaday set.

Take a partly stiff paper and cut it to fit below dial 2 so it will slip under the dial, as most dials are a little away from the panel. Cut a tin or cardboard pointer and glue it exactly in the center of the blank space, opposite the graduations on the dial space opposite the graduations on the dial. The pointer should project one inch over the dial, forming quite a circle on the paper. Draw a line along the paper forming an arc along which the tip of the pointer moves. This dial should be the wave length dial and it will be found very accurate and stations can always be located at the same place. When each new station is brought in mark down the call letters of the station opposite the pointer setting. If your receiver also has a tap switch cutting in more or less turns mark the number of the tap after the call letters. Thus if an inexperienced member of the family wishes to tune in it only will be necessary to set the pointer and the tap switch and pull out the battery switch.—Radio Digest.



Use of the Tin or Cardboard Pointer.

Foppish Fighting Men

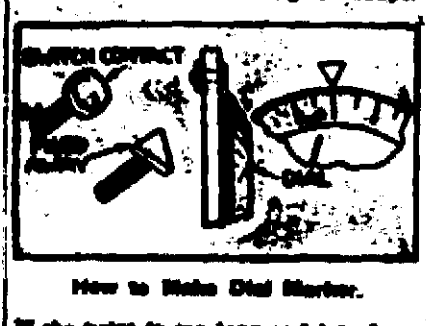
The world-conquering Roman legions wore fancy clothes and gorgeous trappings. For a thousand years, Roman masculine dress sparkled like a sapphire, while the Roman eagles carried the empire north to Gaul, east to Asia Minor and Egypt, west to Spain and south into Africa.

Best Set Will Go Bad With Careless Handling

Although a receiving set is constructed with the greatest care and strongest materials obtainable, it will not withstand hard usage or continue to give efficient results. Many operators will twirl dials, poke into the works and jab in the phone or loud-speaker plugs with unthinking violence—and then wonder why their set does not remain perfect forever. A radio set will stand up under a great deal of abuse, but eventually, if continuously subjected to harsh treatment, something will give way or loosen, and effectiveness will be reduced. The delicate wiring, adjustments and connections must be regarded with the same care that a person would exercise toward the timing gears, carburetor adjustment or valves of a car. The best engine in the world will go bad under abusive usage—and so will the best radio set.

To Make Dial Marker From Old Switch Point

A very good dial marker can be made from an old switch point by filing the head of it to a triangular shape.



How to Make Dial Marker.

If the point is too long and interferes with the condenser plates it may easily be filed down until it just goes through the panel far enough to allow a nut to be put on.—Radio Digest.

BOOM SALES OF NEW YORK CITY REAL ESTATE

Record buying is reported in New York city and suburban lots, in the eagerness of purchasers to own property where municipal and transportation improvements are being made. "Actual sales on one development alone last Sunday in Staten Island, one of the five boroughs of New York city, totaled over $196,000," says N. W. Morison, who has opened an office in Kingston as branch manager for the E. A. White Organization, Inc., New York city, largest real estate sales organization in the world.

"Lots bought in the Bronx ten or fifteen years ago around $500 each have advanced to $5,000 and over in value, in areas reached by new subways. Staten Island is now in the spotlight, with the beginning of a steady boom due to the recent electrification of its railroad, formerly an antiquated steam line, the nearly completed 100-foot wide, concrete Hylan boulevard running the entire length of the island, the proposed subway from Manhattan, and new bridges to New Jersey. New York city's population increases nearly 100,000 each year, and this overflow must find homes in new developed sections. Wise New York investors are getting in on the ground floor of this boom, because they believe lot buying in new properties within New York city to be the safest road to fortune."

"They Are Wearing"—

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

A recent arrival from Scotland respected the vogue for "sets" in a hat and scarf ensemble of tan with a woven design of scarlet. The hat was made in four sections, with small upturned brim, and a pin of red and black lacquer was placed at front.

* * *

A chiffon coat frock seen on Fifth avenue was made in three layers, of brown, beige and tan, which overlapped at collar, sleeves and all the way down one side. A buckle was placed at a low waistline, and the velour hat just matched the brown of the top layer.

* * *

A short-sleeved canary yellow dress worn one afternoon recently showed the slender bodice and suave skirt fulness, and had a neck binding of royal purple velvet ribbon, which hung down the back in long, looped streamers. A large purple velour hat, drooping at the sides, matched the ribbon.

* * *

Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, seen at the premiere of a play, wore a dinner gown of black and ecru lace, the ecru set on in diagonal ruffles from hem to hipline, and the whole worn over a creamy tan slip. The striking black wrap which accompanied this dress was of crepe almost completely covered with black ostrich, in plumes reminiscent of the days when ostrich plumes were a feature of the smart dress hat.

* * *

On the same evening a young girl wore a white satin evening frock, its sole decoration being white silk fringe set on at the waistline. This was stitched in four large leaves, two front and two back, as far down as the hips, where it swung loose.

* * *

Rich shades predominate in millinery, and when black shapes are worn they were usually trimmed with gay touches, a jade medallion, for instance, trimming a wine colored velour. Touches of gilt also are important in this connection, often to form brim facings or in fine cut-work effects on felt.

After briefly reviewing the ts leading up to the adoption of constitution, Mr. Chipp outlined purposes and needs to meet h the constitution was framed, the conflicting views of those met in convention for the pur- of considering it. There were who wanted a purely and di- majority government. There others, fortunately in the ma- y, who realized that tyranny is nny, whether it be exercised by a or by a mob and that the tyranny mob is infinitely more dangerous that of a king. So the consti- on was drawn with provisions would not only give govern- t by the people but would also ect the minority. To enforce interpret the constitution there to be some authority designated, the supreme court was named. the Civil War the constitution its supreme test. Now other tions have arisen that have as t a disuniting tendency as any have preceded them. There is inheritance tax. New York state n it by imposing a tax on col- al inheritance of personal prop- y. The argument was that per- al property escaped taxation and was only fair to tax it once in a ration. This worked so well later the tax was extended to estate. Then it was again ex- ded to the property of non-resi- ts. Other states followed New k in this form of taxation and it loped that New York was get- the heavy end of it, for there is e property in other states owned New Yorkers than there is prop- in New York state owned by dents of other states. In another estate it was ssary, according to the Ken- ky law, to hire a Kentucky law- at a fee designated by law to on whether or not certain stock taxable—and the lawyer was a fee for deciding that the stock not taxable.

This duplication of tax has reach- ch a state that a remedy must found. Amend the constitution? is not so easy, and we have not very fortunate in our recent ndments. The remedy will ably be that the people will be- so disgusted that the states repeal these laws, as Florida already done, with the result people are pouring into Florida investing their money.

Wembley Loss at 25 Millions

Many Hit Heavily in Huge Failure of British Empire Exposition Which Ends Soon—Plan to Use Site.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 17—When the mammoth British Empire Exposition closes its doors on the night of October 31, it will close for the second year in succession as a gigantic financial failure, involving a loss estimated for this year at $15,000,000.

Coupled with the loss suffered during last year's run of the exposition, it is estimated that the total loss to the guarantors will be somewhere in the neighborhood of $25,000,000.

Many Hard Hit.

Many prominent firms throughout Great Britain will be heavily hit through the financial failure of the exposition, but the greatest sufferer will be the British taxpayer, whom, through the government, advanced somewhere in the neighborhood of eight to ten million dollars as a guarantee against its financial failure.

Last year sixty million people were expected to pass through the turnstiles of the exposition, but only eighteen millions did so. This year at least ten to fifteen million people were expected, but, despite the added inducement of reduced rates, additional attractions, and a general brightening up of the exhibits, it is only expected that about eight million people will have seen Wembley this year by October 31st.

The chief reasons for the failure would appear to be the lack of interest shown by the public, and the fact that government officials were chosen to run it instead of a showman, a modern Barnum, whom, it is claimed, would have made it a financial success. The government officials chose to run it as they would a museum, say the exposition's critics, and Wembley accordingly suffered.

Blame Managers.

They charge that the exposition is a tragedy of inexpert management.

This will be the last year of the exposition, which was at first only scheduled to run a year. The future of the mammoth concrete buildings which were built to house the exhibits, and the many acres of land upon which the exposition stands, is being eagerly debated. One proposal is to build a model garden city on the site, with a mammoth amusement park on the style of Coney Island.

In the meantime a realization committee, with J. H. Thomas at its head, has been appointed to see what money can be salvaged for the guarantors from the sale of the land and buildings.

Fleeting Years

EVELYN NESBIT
HARRY K. THAW

When Evelyn Nesbit's cafe at Atlantic City was raided there was a bare announcement of the fact in the papers. On the same day a few lines noted the fact her former husband, Harry Thaw, was visiting his old haunts on Broadway.

Explaining "Monads"

A monad is one of the elements containing within themselves the principles of both substance and form, by the combination of which the universe is constituted and by whose activities its changes and developments are explained. According to Leibnitz, they are nonspatial, self-acting forces, or immaterial units, each one representing the same universe, but representing it from a different point of view, and each attaining its activity through the will of God, in Himself simple actuality and perfection.—Washington Star.

Like a Dream

When I reflect on what I have seen, what I have heard, and what I have done, I can hardly persuade myself that all that frivolous hurry and bustle of pleasure in the world had any reality; but I look upon all that is passed as one of those romantic dreams which opium commonly occasions, and I do by no means desire to repeat the nauseous dose.—Lord Chesterfield.

Withering Comment on Result of World War

The Recorder sat in a tower on the wall of the Eternal city and thumbed an ancient book. The book contained the record of man's achievements.

The entries were surprisingly few. On the first yellow page were two words: "Fire discovered." The second entry, obviously made many centuries later, was equally terse: "The wheel discovered." It was evident that the Recorder took no notice of trifles and made entries only on those rare occasions when men took a step forward.

There was a brief note concerning the beginning of organized government, when men sacrificed personal liberty to win safety, and another to mark the beginning of democracy.

The discovery of printing received three lines.

The Recorder thumbed the pages of his book and yawned. And even as he yawned there was a great stir on the earth below and a war was in progress.

Nations girded themselves for the conflict and young men marched in countless millions. Guns bellowed, gases crept along the ground, mighty ships were shattered. Orators denounced the evil that had been let loose in the world; idealists pictured a world free from human nature; valient men died without whimpering because their cause seemed just. Cities were destroyed; children starved; fields lay idle.

And when the orgy of killing was over, men gathered up the shattered remains of the civilization they had been so long in building, taxed themselves to pay for their follies and wrote their memoirs.

The world was dotted with new graves; new prejudices formed. The maimed hobbled on every street.

The Recorder, leaning on a window sill, had watched the commotion with some show of eagerness. Apparently he had hopes.

But when the world had returned to its accustomed way he yawned and closed his book.

A messenger appeared at the door with a question.

"Tell him," said the Recorder, "that nothing has happened."—Baltimore Sun.

College and Cathedral

Christ church, the largest and most notable of Oxford (Eng.) colleges, is in the fifth century of its existence. For reasons of convenience the celebration already had been held, so the true birthday anniversary of this curious institution, which is both a college and a cathedral and yet is called a church, passed quietly during the long vacation.

Modern investigation has revealed a remarkable continuity in the history of English ecclesiastical foundations. The Saxons built their churches on the ruins of the great Roman temples, and the Normans in their turn rebuilt the Saxon churches.

This continuity is most remarkable in Oxford, where nearly every college has grown out of a medieval monastery.

Christ church stands on the site of a priory, a parish church and at least two older monastic colleges. Its bells were removed from a neighboring abbey, and both the stones and the funds used in its construction were obtained from the dissolution of more than forty monastic foundations.

Rare Staffordshire Blue Plate One Hundred Years Old Depicts Historic Landing of Lafayette

Impressed upon a rare Staffordshire platter, preserved in the museum of the American Antiquarian Society, at Worcester, Mass., this scene shows the landing of General Lafayette at New York, in the late summer of 1824. Throngs fringed the roof of Castle Garden, shown at right, and harbor craft shrieked madly, while cannon boomed a salute from the Battery sea-wall, as riders galloped back of the guns. America had never witnessed such a scene up to that day.

WORCESTER, Mass.—One of the rare historic relics of America of one hundred years ago, a reproduction of a picturesque scene showing the landing of General Lafayette at New York upon his memorable visit to the United States in the late summer and fall of 1824, is in the museum of the American Antiquarian Society here. The scene is impressed upon a dark blue dinner platter of Staffordshire pottery which, a century ago, was in vogue among American families.

In the Staffordshire pottery notable American views were used by the English makers from artists' sketches which were preserved in no other way. When American families ceased using the exquisite dark blue Staffordshire years later this plate, with its authentic views, became invaluable both as a ceramic, as well as historic, rarity.

The Staffordshire platter shows Lafayette landing amid scenes such as this country never before had witnessed, scenes which gave stirring evidence of a nation's tribute to Lafayette's aid, half a century before, in America's struggle for independence in the Revolutionary War.

For more than forty years after the war Lafayette had remained abroad. When, in 1824, the French General accepted an official invitation of Congress, signed by President Monroe, to visit America as its guest, he had no idea what was ahead of him.

When Lafayette arrived off Staten Island, one day, toward the middle of August on a packet boat, he was amazed to find a huge fleet of flag-decked boats awaiting him. Lafayette was then taken aboard the "General Livingston," the side-wheel marvel of New York waters of that day.

Led by the "Robert Fulton," another gallant side-wheeler, and with the saucy little "Nautilus" paddling proudly along at the Fulton's stern, Lafayette, amid the screech of whistles, barking of cannon from the old Battery sea-wall and cheers from thousands of throats, landed at the old Castle Garden.

It was a gala day in New York. Lafayette was feted and there was a monster parade; everywhere he went huge throngs lustily, yet reverently, cheered him.

For more than two months Lafayette toured the country, going to New England, to the Middle Atlantic states, into the Middle West. Unprepared for such demonstrations as he encountered everywhere, the Marquis de Lafayette was deeply touched.

The Staffordshire blue plate in the museum of the American Antiquarian Society, the most complete collection extant, was collected in furtherance of the Society's aim to aid in the study of America's growth, just as, in the same way, it has gathered a wealth of rare historical manuscripts and printed records, including American newspapers, from the first one published, 220 years ago.

Founded in 1812, the Society numbers among its members 200 leading historians and scholars. Nearly every President of the United States since the founding of the Society has been a member. Chief Justice William Howard Taft is one of its council.

Bibane Falls in French Hands

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Melilla, Morocco, Sept. 17.—Riff pressure along the Spanish western front was weakening today, with the Spanish showing a stiffened resistance under the command of General Neuvilas, who has arrived to take charge of the defense.

News of the fall of Bibane before the French in the eastern zone added encouragement to those watching progress of the Franco-Spanish campaign.

Disembarkment of more troops at Alhucemas Bay was held up today by the violent equinoxial winds, but it was reported that the disembarked troops have enough food and supplies for several days without additional aid from the French and Spanish flotilla.

Spanish Troops Mutiny.

Paris, Sept. 17.—Renewed reports of disorders among Spanish troops embarking for Morocco were received today from Gibraltar. Contingents shipping from Malaga and Algeciras have mutinied and attempted to prevent the embarkations, the advices said.

Although there is great joy over the French capture of Bibane, there is some misgivings as to the cost of this victory. The casualties have not been announced, but it was believed they were heavy.

Farm Bureau Head Says Farmers Need Leaders

President of American Farm Bureau Federation Reviews Accomplishments and Points to Problems That Need Attention—State Home Bureau Head Speaks for Women.

O. E. Bradfute of Ohio, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, addressed a large audience at Syracuse Tuesday at the State Fair. It was Farm and Home Bureau Day and hundreds of Farm Bureau members were present to hear President Bradfute.

The farmer needs help, the speaker said, but not as a drowning man does; he will help himself if he is permitted to. Education, organization for offense instead of defense; cooperative effort in producing, collecting, distributing, and marketing his products; speedy and cheap transportation; a more equitable tax were pointed out by Mr. Bradfute as ways the farmer can help himself. He added that the help proffered farmers by outside interests "Too often is of such a nature, that its acceptance would mean more to the helper than to the helped."

Emphasizing the crying need in agriculture for leadership, the speaker urged organization for offense, rather than defense. "Farmers have heretofore thought only of organizing for defense," he said. "That will not get them any place—just defending their rights. That means tagging along behind the other fellow. The biggest and oldest business in the country might well be more assertive. The unbiased council and advice of an educated farm leadership is now, and has always been, recognized as constructive and not destructive and is always for the upbuilding of a nation.

No Bolshevists Among Farmers.

"All our real statesmen have kept their ears well attuned to the voices from the open country where dwell the home owners and guardians of our civil and religious liberty. Bolshevism does not originate or thrive among such people. The nation has nothing to lose and much to gain should the agricultural people become more assertive and set up some real standards for progress."

Cooperative Marketing Helps Quality.

Mr. Bradfute stressed especially the importance of the right sort of cooperative marketing. "Far too many people think of cooperative marketing as simply a number of farmers combining their products for the purpose of holding for better prices, which is by no means the thing sought. In order to properly cooperatively market a product, it means bringing a volume together, then carefully sorting, grading, standardizing and trade-marking the product by which the producer assumes responsibility for the quality of the product, and must guarantee it if he expects to hold his trade. All this means great improvement in quality of the product on each farm and an effort to produce only the highest quality to meet the standard set up, and the farmer is thus educated to the demands of the market using his products.

"The whole thing tends to a most successful result, which is control of production and a quality rather than a quantity production. Quantity production has resulted in much surplusage of some of our farm commodities and has been the bane of American agriculture of recent years.

Transportation and Taxes.

"The farmer is much interested in and helped by speedy and cheap transportation. He, therefore, wants good roads, good railroads and good water transportation. He is willing to pay his full share toward such things, but he wants proper adjustments and a square deal. Fine boulevards or pleasure roads across the state are not of much value to him unless he be especially catering to the tourist.

"A careful study of taxation, local, state and national will reveal many injustices to agriculture. This will never be corrected unless the farmers go after the matter themselves. Other groups keep able experts at work looking after their taxation interest at all law making stations. Farm organizations have not as yet given those matters sufficient attention with the result that more and more of the taxation burden is being passed on to them each year. Some of the State Farm Bureaus have been very, very successful in protecting the farmers of their states from such injustices, and much more could be done to help the farmer. It would be a splendid investment for farmers to spend some money in making studies of this whole matter, especially the methods which are used by the wealthy class to pass their tax burden on to someone else.

Guarding Legislative Interests.

"I do not desire to put much stress on help to farmers through legislation—yet, it would seem that one-third of the people of the United States, representing the greatest investment in the country, should at least have their interest as carefully guarded. Perhaps as much benefit would come by preventing worthless or bad legislation as in securing new legislation. Other groups do not hesitate to take advantage of every legislative opportunity. Most Congressmen are very glad to serve their constituents if they are only informed as to what is wanted. Farmers during the last five years [illegible] action more legislation for the benefit of agriculture than they did in the previous twenty-five years, largely because they were represented by their Farm Bureau and the Grange to look after their interests. Our farm organizations have been most helpful in this particular and should continue their activities."

Home Bureau President Speaks.

Mr. Bradfute was followed on the rostrum by Mrs. G. Thomas Powell of Glen Head, Long Island, president of the New York State Home Bureau Federation. Praising the rural women for her part in farm life, Mrs. Powell said:

"Whether it may come through legislation, cooperation or in other ways, the woman on the farm asks that farming become a better occupation—that there be sufficient return for the farmer's work to drive away the demon of self-pity which reigns today in the country. She demands good schools for her children, that they be not penalized because father is a farmer. It takes trained men and women to meet the demands of modern agriculture. What was good enough for us and for our parents is most surely not good enough for the next generation.

"Country life today needs a revitalizing of the rural church. The men and women who have worked all through the week with Nature need on the Sabbath to gather at the near-by church to 'look from Nature up to Nature's God.' They want to listen, not to a nice young man who has come to the country because it is a good place to live, nor to a nice old man who has come to the country because it is a good place to die, but they do want to listen to a man trained in some theological seminary not yet built, to love the country, to love its people, and to realize their need and appreciation of a special message."

Enos Lee, president of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, was host at a reception for President Bradfute.

No Distinction In France's Case

France Will Not be Accorded More Generous Terms Than England—Data on France's Economic Position Discloses That Frenchmen Are Paying Smaller Taxes.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 17.—M. Joseph Caillaux, the French finance minister, now en route to Washington to negotiate a settlement of France's $4,000,000,000 debt, apparently is due for a distinct shock if he reaches here with the expectation of obtaining terms appreciably more generous than were accorded to Great Britain.

On the heels of Senator William E. Borah's warning yesterday that any material departure from the British agreement, in the case of France, will find hard sledding in the senate, treasury officials hastened today to disclaim any intention on the part of the debt funding commission to grant France any "special considerations" that were not accorded other debtor nations.

As if in substantiation of the treasury's determination to make no undue distinction in France's case, some of the data bearing on France's economic position collected by treasury experts was permitted to become public.

This data discloses that the average Frenchman is paying considerably less taxes than the average Britisher, and the average American, and that the French tax rate, as related to national income, is considerably lower than in Britain or the United States. A series of charts, illustrating these figures, has been prepared to meet the expected argument of M. Caillaux that France is "poor and tax ridden."

The percentage of taxation to national income in Great Britain is 23.2; in France it is 20.9, in the United States it is 19.2; and Italy, 19.2.

Treasury officials point out, however, that the figure for the United States is misleading and that it in reality is considerably higher because of the multitude of local and extraordinary taxes paid by the average American that do not prevail in either France or Italy.

The most comprehensive survey of French conditions has been made by treasury experts for use in the French negotiations.

To the expected argument that France is "poor" and that her foreign trade has been hard hit by American prohibition on her wines and liquors, the American experts will reply that for the second time in fifty years, French exports now will exceed her imports.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS.

The Paramount picture, "Are Parents People?" featuring Adolphe Menjou, Betty Bronson ("Peter Pan") and Florence Vidor, opens at the Keeney Theater tonight for the balance of the week. The story has to do with a young girl who comes home from boarding school to find her parents, who are forever quarrelling over trifles, with trunks packed, the father on his way to Paris, the mother—Reno. They have decided to separate and have called home their daughter so she can choose which one she is going with. How does Betty decide? Also the Keeney News, topics of the day, novelties and a screaming comedy.

If anything the performance given Wednesday at the Opera House matinee by the Merkle Harder Company players appeared to excel even the fine efforts displayed in the previous productions this week. The playgoers in search of thrills will have their desires fully satisfied today when the company will present the big melodrama of the crook variety, "High Stakes."

At the Auditorium tonight Constance Bennett, Myrtle Stedman and Edward Piel, Jr., will be seen in James Cruze's "The Goose Hangs High."

Summer Home Robbed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Swampscott, Mass., Sept. 17.—Diamonds and pearls were stolen by burglars during the night from the summer home of G. A. Terhune, Jr., wealthy manufacturer, near White Court, the summer White House. The silver plate was overlooked. Entrance was gained by forcing a second story window.

Flapjack Opened Way to Romance

President Coolidge's Favorite Cook, "Maggie" Carr, Made Noble Flapjacks Which Won Way to Jerry Shea's Heart—Reception at Summer White House.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Swampscott, Mass., Sept. 17.—"Sure, it's the lilt in her laugh and teh twinkle in her eye and the walk and talk and the ways of her that I'm marrying her for. But it all started with the flapjacks, and her making them in the Coolidge kitchen, and me eating them. Noble, they were."

And that's the love story of Jerry Shea, chauffeur and caretaker at White Court, and Miss "Maggie" Carr, President Coolidge's favorite cook, as told today by Jerry himself. Jerry fell in love with the flapjacks and then he fell in love with the girl.

"Yes, noble they were," continued Jerry in a dreamy sort of way. "Neat and sweet and quiet, like a Kerry countryside."

"What, the flapjacks," gasped in the interviewer.

"No, no, the girl," replied Jerry.

Miss Carr, who is Margaret to the Coolidges, but "Maggie" to Mr. Shea, came to the Summer White House in June from Washington. Jerry, who is a World War hero, met her the day she arrived.

It was in the kitchen, he explained today. She had a big apron on and was building the flapjacks that have satisfied the palates of presidents, diplomats, generals and even second class postmasters.

"It was all over with me in a minute," explained Jerry. "After I ate the flapjacks I was as good as landed.

"Taking care of Maggie was my main job from that time on. We walked and talked together, and now and again—say six or eight times a day—I'd find myself in the kitchen.

"Sure it took me two weeks to get up courage to propose to her. But then there were times I had to pay a little attention to my other duties.

"Anyway, we're losing little time on the wedding. Sunday she'll be back from visiting her friends in Washington. And three weeks or the like of that we'll be getting hitched.

"We'll go cruising on the Mediterranean for a honeymoon and then in February we'll be back at White Court.

"And all her life she's to remind me to wear my rubbers and ask me did I mail the letter, and why didn't I get home earlier. For that's the way with wives."

Jerry thought a moment then exclaimed: "And cook me flapjacks."

The wedding, it was stated today, will be from a Boston church with the possibility that the reception will be held at White Court, the Summer White House."

CHARGE RAIL RATES BAR CANAL TRANSPORTATION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 17.—An investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission to determine whether trans-continental railroad rates on seventeen roads are not so unduly preferential as to constitute a barrier to water transportation through the Panama Canal was requested today in a petition filed with the commission by the Luckenbach Steamship Company.

The petition set forth that these rates are so preferential that they hinder the growth of steamship traffic in coast to coast business.

If You Tire Easily—Beware of Chronic Fatigue

Thousands are victims of chronic fatigue—and do not know it.

If you tire easily, feel "all-in" at night, and wake up unrefreshed in the morning—if you are always weak, nervous, headachy, etc.—nine chances out of ten the real cause is chronic fatigue.

Ordinary fatigue—the kind you feel after hard work, etc.—is normal. That's nothing to worry about. But chronic fatigue comes from within. Your nerves, muscles, etc., have become debilitated and cannot function properly.

To conquer it you must get at its cause—in the blood. For it is when your blood is thin and pale, lacking in sufficient iron, that you become run-down, and are a victim of chronic fatigue.

What you need is to strengthen your system by getting more iron in your blood. Don't take the older mineral iron medicines which many doctors now say do little good. Take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your own blood. Unlike ordinary mineral iron it does not injure the teeth or upset the stomach, but is promptly assimilated. Take Nuxated Iron for just 2 weeks and you'll be astonished how it begins to revitalize you and gives you new strength and endurance. Money back if not improved. At all good druggists.

Arrest Follows Hold Up 'For Fun'

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 17.—With two bullet wounds in his body, Richard Clark, wealthy young contractor of Dedham, was found, by police today near his auto in Roxbury.

At City Hospital Clark said he offered to take two men he met in Boston to their homes in Roxbury in his car. En route, Clark said, they remarked that they would have to hold him up.

The men asked to be put down and as they left the car, Clark said, they fired at him and then fled.

Walter and George Morley, brothers, arrested by police, admitted the attack on Clark, according to police. They said they had been drinking with the contractor and held him up "for fun." Walter was charged with assault and battery and George with intoxication. Clark was not robbed.

One of the prisoners obtained a saw from an unknown source last night and sawed the door of his cell, passing the saw on to three other guardsmen who also sawed the bars from their cell.

The quartet came up on Keeper John Farrell in the jail corridor and rendered him unconscious.

The three who escaped with Jallnee were Arthur Clements, 25, James Rice, 26, and Burmica Kelbridi, 36. Kilbridi and Jallnee are Filipinos.

"IS AMERICA AFRAID OF THE TRUTH?" ASKS COMMUNIST

By Telegraph to The Freeman

London, Sept. 17.—"Is America afraid of the truth?"

Shapurji Saklatvala indignantly shot this question at interviewers today, just after he had received official notification that the United States would not permit him entrance to the country to attend the Inter-Parliamentary Union, on grounds that he is an undesirable agitator.

"So that is free America, is it?" said the little Parsee Communist member of the British House of Commons, his eyes flashing with fire, as he crumpled the official notification handed to him by an American consul.

"Well, you can tell your people that I won't attempt to enter their country," continued Saklatvala. # An All-American Semi-Final Match

With But Two Invaders Remaining in Tennis Singles an All-American Semi-Final Round is Assured—Matches Today.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 17.—There will be an all-American semi-final round, almost as sure as death and decay, when the ultimate four survivors of the national championship in tennis singles are called to the barrier tomorrow. Of the original 64 starters, 12 were foreigners and four of them were the champions of France, Australia, Japan and England, the leading tennis nations outside of America. Yet the showdown finds two invaders remaining in the field, Manuel Alonso of Spain, and Rene La Coste of France, and the betting is brisk that they are not long for this life.

Alonso has been coupled with Bill Johnston in the forth round this afternoon, which means that he is due to take one on of the competitive chin. La Coste, by long odds the best of the foreign field and mayhap a future world's champion, is to play Vincent Richards and, while the issue here is hardly a formality, Richards has been hailed as the logical winner.

The impassive Frenchman has played great tennis over the last two weeks but yesterday, in needing five sets to beat "Babe" Norton, his game gave evidence of having contracted fallen arches.

It may be assured, therefore, that Johnston and Richards will be two of the semi-finalists. A third will be William Tilden, the well known author, actor, artist, orator and what not. William is to play Wallace Johnston, the chop stroke king who beat Jim Anderson yesterday, and the outcome is fore-ordained unless the champion is in a worse way than the verdict of the impromptu coroner's jury would seem to indicate.

The fourth semi-finalist will be either Howard Kinsey or R. Norris Williams, the writer favoring Kinsey. A combination of steadiness and brilliance, he figures to wear down the temperamental Williams, whose brilliancy is only exceeded by his competitive eccentricity.

The Pirates stepped out to within eight games of the National League pennant by taking a double fall out of the Dodgers, 5 to 3 and 6 to 2.

Rommel weighed in with his twenty-first victory of the season in beating the White Sox 4 to 1 but the Athletics finished second to Blankenship in the closing game, 6 to 2.

Alexander shut the Braves right out in the first game, 3 to 0, the Cubs emerging from the cellar in spite of the fact that they dropped the second, 8 to 6.

Kelly's double with two on in the third proved the abiding factor in a right and left handed contest between Luque and Nehf, the Giants beating the Reds 2 to 1.

The Yanks so far forgot themselves as to beat the Cleveland Indians twice, 8 to 0 and 4 to 3, Shocker and Pennock being too much for the visiting firemen.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—The State Department has been notified by the Roumanian government that it will send a debt commission to the United States some time in October.

Sheldon Spends Busy Day Talking

Addresses High School Pupils, Teachers, Ministers and Cooperage Company Employes—Leads High School Student Body in Class Yell.

Wednesday was a busy day for Mr. Sheldon as instructor in the Forum of Fundamentals conducted by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. At 8:30 he met a thousand of the young people of Kingston at the High School auditorium.

A blackboard was provided and Mr. Sheldon taught four facts; first the signal of the game of life, which shows the percentage of successes and failures in the world.

The second fact made plain the cause of the ultimate economic failure of 95 people out of each 100. This cause, he made plain, is selfishness taking the form of seeking to get reward before taking care of the cause of all deserved reward, which is the giving of useful service. He illustrated this fact with a diagram and also with the relation of several incidents.

The third fact which he made plain was the remedy, which made it clear that anyone who really wants to build the fire of service and thus ultimately obtain the heat of deserved reward labors under the necessity of natural law of seeing to it that the quality of what he says and does is right, also the quantity, and that in addition to this he must make his mode of conduct right in all his human relationships.

He laid special emphasis upon the practical nature of right mode of conduct and showed that the Q. Q. M. formula of service applies to studentship as well as to everything else. The student who gets some of the lessons real well is alright as to quality and proves that he can do good work, but if he fails to master all of the lessons he falls down on the quantity element as a student. On the other hand the one who gets all the lessons but does not get them thoroughly, simply doing enough to "get by" takes care of the quantity element in his work but slights quality and is not a good student. A third student may get all the lessons and get them thoroughly thus taking care of the quality and quantity, but if he is guilty of wrong mode of conduct he still is not a good student.

He pointed out that it is entirely possible for anyone to be brilliant intellectually in his studies and still ruin his life through wrong mode of conduct.

Mr. Sheldon also showed that one only approaches perfection in service to the degree that he approaches perfection in the quality element, the quantity element and the mode element, which means mode of conduct or human behavior.

The fourth fact which he made plain teaches the law of conservation. He made plain to the entire student body that there are five steps which everyone must take if he would arrive at the goal of making good.

The first step is the desire to render the maximum service in whatever niche of the world's work one fills.

The second step takes the form of seeking earnestly to increase one's capacity to render the maximum of service. If the desire is present, the capacity can be increased. He stressed the fact that the object of going to school was just that, to increase the capacity to be useful in the world and that this necessitated the development of "heart" and "hand" and will power as well as "head" or intellectual power.

The third step is the application of the capacity that is developed, and he made it plain that some people are either too lazy or too indifferent to apply all the capacity they have developed.

The fourth step is the collection of an honest, fair, just reward for the service really rendered.

The fifth step is the conservation or no-waste of the collected reward.

The entire student body repeated with him in unison the following statement:

WASTE NOT! WANT NOT!
WASTE NOT WHAT?
TIME, ENERGY, MONEY, MATERIAL.

At the close of his lecture, Mr. Sheldon gave the high school students a class yell involving the Q. Q. M. formula of service. This was given several times by the entire student body.

In the afternoon at 4 o'clock Mr. Sheldon met all the teachers of the city at a special meeting of teachers called by Dr. Michael. On this occasion Mr. Sheldon delivered an address to the teachers on the subject of "The Philosophy of Education."

The board of education has decided to give all the teachers of the city the same credit for attendance at Mr. Sheldon's course in Human Engineering, the Science and Art of Man-Power Development that is given to teachers who go away and attend a summer normal.

At the close of his lecture practically all of the teachers registered for the coming series of lectures. This is a part of the public service of the Chamber of Commerce to the educators of this city and is a great big step toward the teaching of Natural Law in the public schools.

At 6 o'clock Mr. Sheldon met the Ministerial Association of the city, while at 7 o'clock he met the staff of the Kingston Cooperage Company. Large numbers of the staff of this enterprising company gathered at the Chamber of Commerce where they listened to an address on practically the same theme on which he addressed the high school in the morning, the difference being the application of the four facts which he taught were illustrated in connection with their bearing on work in industry and commercial life.
